BANKING FOR THE BUSINESS WORLD

Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow

Great projects, lesser undertakings, humble business beginnings—all have shared in the banking co-operation afforded ever since 1817 by the Bank of Montreal.

And in this swift-moving day we are abreast of business, as it speeds into tomorrow on all-metal airplanes, streamlined trains, swift ocean ships and amazing highway motors.

Unchanged in its basic character of co-worker with Canadian business and safe dependable banking ally, the Bank has merely altered the speed of its service to keep pace with changing business.

We did our banking part in the canal-boat and stage-coach era; we are doing our part in the present-century business and industrial development of the Dominion, and we are prepared to meet the increased service demands to be expected in tomorrow's world of business. We are always pioneering.

Business executives are cordially invited to talk about their banking needs with the manager of any of our 500 branches.

INTRODUCTION

THE primary object of the publishers of the Canadian Trade Index is to provide buyers and sellers at home and abroad with an authoritative directory of the products manufactured in Canada with the names of the firms making them. It includes a complete list of all Canadian manufacturers having more than a local distribution for their products, irrespective of membership in the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

In war the information in this book is of more value than ever: in Canada we must find to an increasing extent Canadian sources for our growing requirements, and in overseas countries many former sources of supply have been cut off or greatly impaired. As a matter of policy, arsenals or government owned plants are not listed.

When first published in 1900, the Canadian Trade Index included only members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Incorporated. Since that time, as a result of constructive suggestions from several Ministers of the Crown and members of the Association, the book has been enlarged to meet conditions in both domestic and overseas markets.

Many years ago it was made a national publication, including all manufacturers in Canada. To assist buyers in other countries, overseas representatives of Canadian manufacturers were listed and French and Spanish Sections added. As a result of an arrangement with the Department of Trade and Commerce at Ottawa, the Index was enlarged to include a Special Export Section and a list of producers, shippers and exporters of agricultural produce and allied lines.

In this edition the Export Section has a foreword by The Honourable James A. MacKinnon, Minister of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa.

Owing to the detailed classification and the numerous advertisements, prospective purchasers are generally in a position to get in direct contact with manufacturers of the goods desired, but where information regarding specialized lines is required the gratuitous service of the Commercial Intelligence Department of the Association is offered. It is suggested that importers abroad should first communicate with Canadian Government Trade Commissioners in their respective territories. Their names are listed on pages 152 and 153 of the Export Section. Representatives of overseas firms visiting Canada are invited to call at the Head Office of the Association where they will be given every possible assistance.

The Index is kept up to date by an annual revision, and the past year has been spent in checking and revising names, addresses and classifications. Each manufacturer is sent a revising form on which any changes in firm names or products are reported. Additional information is received from Government departments, mercantile reports, and our ten offices across Canada. Classifications are generally established by consultation with manufacturers and experts in various industries.

The publishers wish to thank all organizations, government departments, and the manufacturers who have so kindly aided by furnishing the information on which the book is based.

"in the front line"

A FRONT LINE comprised of the armed forces of the democracies and the ranks of industry and finance. In this front line The Canadian Bank of Commerce assists in financing every phase of the war effort through 560 branches across Canada and abroad.

Our commercial loans help to produce and deliver arms, munitions and other materials essential to the fighting forces and civilian population.

Our wickets are channels for the pay of armed forces and war workers alike, as well as for sales of War Savings Certificates and bonds.

Our branches and correspondents outside Canada provide direct contact with the commercial and banking activities of the democracies abroad.

In all its seventy-four years of existence this Bank has never found greater opportunities for service or more proudly assumed new responsibilities than at the present time.

FACILITATING WARTIME TRADE

DURING the past year Canada has seen a complete right-about turn in business. Increased production to keep up with War and Civil demands claimed the attention of the executives in almost every department of industry.

A seller's market developed bringing new conditions and new demands, and these conditions and these increasing demands will likely continue for the duration of the war. New questions arise. Should the plant be enlarged? Can personnel be obtained? Will rationing of materials interfere with production? Where is the money to come from?

Imperial Bank of Canada can help in such war-time problems. Certainly it would be glad to try. Consult with any manager throughout Canada, and be sure of a cordial reception.

Here are 3 ANSWERS to 3 BIG PROBLEMS!

★ Uppermost in the minds of many executives today are the three big problems of (1) holding customers "for future delivery", (2) helping dealers to stay in business, and (3) maintaining employee co-operation. They're BIG problems, yet a number of aggressive Canadian organizations are helping to solve them with House Publications—private magazines that protect the heavy investments their companies have made in securing customer goodwill, in building up dealer organizations and in creating an "esprit de corps" among employees. For instance:

CUSTOMERS WELCOME "Imperial Oilways" since it contains practical information to help them increase mechanical efficiency. Issued by Imperial Oil Limited, this publication contains timely, authoritative articles, gives industrial buyers the important facts they are seeking today. If this is your problem, a publication along the lines of "Imperial Oilways" may be the answer.

EMPLOYEE CO-OPERATION is needed today more than ever before if plants are to keep running at peak production, if companies are to fill their orders quickly. The Ford Motor Company of Canada uses "Ford Times" to assist in this vital work. A picture magazine, "Ford Times" serves to give a better understanding of the part the individual employee plays in the success of Ford operations. Perhaps an employee publication is your answer!

HELPING DEALERS TO STAY in business today means keeping a strong retail organization all ready for the prompt sales effort your company will initiate when the war is over. For this reason the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company of Canada Limited is insuring its future NOW with the "B-F-G Bulletin", a publication that is helping B. F. Goodrich dealers to find answers to their current problems. Maybe a dealer publication will also help you to give your dealers the ideas, advice, and encouragement they need right now!

★ SATURDAY NIGHT PRESS has long specialized in House Publication production, offers busy advertisers a valuable combination of creative and productive services — plans, layouts, art, copy, photography, engravings, printing by letterpress or offset lithography, addressing and mailing. If you would like to see how Saturday Night Press is helping important industrial organizations in the production of their company publications write, or call Ad. 7361.

To Our Friends:

The very nature of our products and our reputation as old established manufacturers of high quality steels have placed an unusually heavy war-time burden on us. Despite improved facilities and expanded capacity we are still unable to take care of the defence requirements that we are called upon to produce and at the same time supply commercial needs.

DEFENCE MUST COME FIRST

and whereas we are decidedly unhappy in our present inability to offer our old friends in the domestic and export markets the service to which they are customarily entitled, we feel certain that they will bide with us in these troubled times and we look forward to the post war period when we will be better equipped than ever to play our part in the busy days of reconstruction.

"UNI-MATIC" OIL PURIFIERS

DIRTY lubricating oil is a primary cause of excessive friction and rapid bearing wear — the enemies of smooth, dependable turbine or Diesel operation.

The De Laval Oil Purifier keeps lubricating oil clean — continuously and unfailingly. Thus, it enables oil to provide a maximum of protection to moving parts. At the same time, it enables the oil to be safely used over long periods.

These facts, recognized for many years by builders and operators of prime movers, are now more important than ever.

— And now, too, the superiority of De Laval centrifugal purification is greater than ever before. In recent years efficiencies have been improved so that still cleaner oil is delivered. Capacities have been stepped up so that oil is purified more rapidly. Machines are easier to handle — more nearly fool proof — and require less attention.

with WELDED STEEL TUBING

"STAN" STEEL FACTORY TRUCKS AND EQUIPMENT

Designed through close study of shop requirements, the Stan-Steel line of ladders, work benches and trucks of every kind are bringing old-established plants up to 1942 standards. Why should men push dead weight around? Save your labour for more productive work. You will find full information in the latest Stan-Steel Catalogue. Write for a copy.

You are wasting time and money if you have not thought what savings steel tubing can bring you. A tube is the strongest section you can have per pound of weight. Transportation Companies know this. That is why aeroplanes, busses, trucks and railway cars use so much tubing.

In every industry there are places where steel tubing can effect savings. With us this is a constant study, so it is likely we can help you find out where your costs can be cut, time saved, appearance of your product improved or weight reduced.

STAN-STEEL Tubing, produced by the electric-resistance welded process, is conceded to be the best welded tube ever developed. Sizes from  $\frac{3}{8}$ " O.D. x 24 gauge to 3" O.D. x 11 gauge. Give this suggestion your serious thought now. Write for Hand Book.

Speed Reducers

Used wherever High Speed Power is applied to Low Speed Use

Worm gear and helical gear units, in single and multiple reduction, are made in a wide range of sizes. Send for catalogue on either of these types, listing standard sizes, with power capacities and detail specifications. These are high grade, heavy duty gear drives, designed and rated for 24-hour continuous service. Ratios are available up to six thousand to one in simple, efficient, self-contained units.

Integral motorized speed reducers and increasers, built as one self-contained unit, are made in a full range of sizes, in both worm gear and helical gear forms, in single and multiple reduction, to give almost any desired final speed. This construction offers many advantages in freedom of arrangement.

We have extended our line of Double Reduction Worm units to quite large sizes. These have ratios ranging from about 60 up to 6000 to one. A catalogue covers this line in detail.

The Planetary type of speed reducer with shafts in line is now made for coupled connection, as shown, as well as in the original motorized form. A catalogue has been issued on each of these lines.

The Compensating Joint

Silent Chain Drives

The Hamilton-Ramsey silent chain (made in Canada) will operate at higher speeds and run smoother and with less wear than any competing chain because of the compensating rolling cam action in the patented Ramsey joint. 24-hour delivery, in  $\frac{3}{8}$ " to  $1\frac{1}{2}$ " pitch.

HE CALLED FOR HELP AND TAYLOR CONTROL SPEEDS IT ON ITS WAY...

HOW TAYLOR CONTROL IS SPEEDING UP PRODUCTION AND REDUCING POWER COSTS AND MATERIAL COSTS IN WAR SUPPLY INDUSTRIES . . . .

IN munition plants, textile plants, pulp and paper mills, lumber dry kilns—in all industries — Taylor controls for temperature, pressure and flow are speeding up war-time production and increasing efficiency. Many plants are standardized on Taylor control systems for intricate and exacting processes. In other plants Taylor indicating industrial thermometers are doing standard checking, and ensuring that temperatures are kept right so that war supplies may be delivered.

Taylor Instrument Companies of Canada Limited are proud of the war-work which their products are doing but are not losing sight of the essential requirements of ordinary customers.

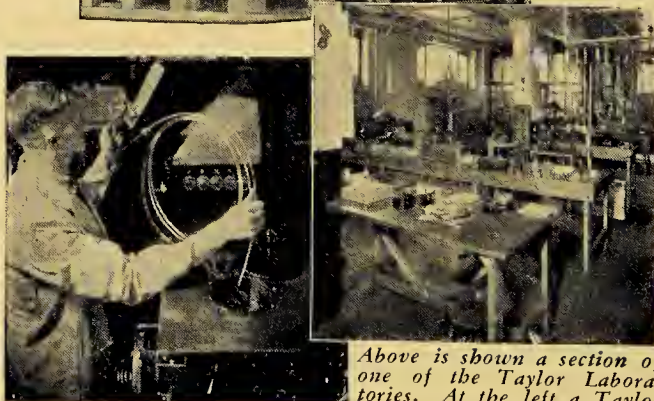

We are maintaining our supplies of instruments to industry in most lines and are always ready to advise on any problems regarding the indicating, recording or controlling of temperatures, pressures and flow.

REMEMBER . . . up-to-date Taylor repair service is available in the Toronto plant for broken temperature, pressure and flow instruments.

At left is shown the Canadian plant and head office of Taylor Instrument Companies of Canada Limited at Toronto. It is fully equipped with the most modern apparatus and staffed by skilled instrument engineers.

Let DIE CASTINGS

Here we show only a few of the parts we are making for various Canadian manufacturers. These include automobile ornaments and hardware, plumbing fixtures, padlocks, door stops, hose nozzles, telephone stands, clock cases, candlesticks, and gears and other parts for washing machines. If your product has metal parts now made by the slower and more expensive sand-casting method, it will pay you well to look into the savings and better satisfaction of die casting.

STRENGTH — Our zinc base alloy is from virgin metals of a tested, proven formula. A thermostat holds the casting temperature to an absolute pre-determined degree. Our machines, which are of the latest improved type, always produce a dense, homogeneous casting.

PRECISION — Our dies will assure all dimensions within extremely close limits. The variety of castings now being made in our plant is evidence of our ability to turn out successfully whatever you may require.

FINISH — Requires very little machining or polishing in your factory.

For Canada, the Empire, and Victory

ON September 10, 1939, the Dominion of Canada declared war on Germany. Since that time, the enemy has thrown every resource at his command against Great Britain. But his fury has beaten on that valiant island to no avail. Today Britain stands firm and resolute, her defence assured by the strength of Canada and the sister nations of the Commonwealth.

Today industrial Canada is geared to an ever-rising crescendo of production. Her men and women, her farms, mines, forests and factories are dedicated to Victory.

In that great task the International Harvester Company of Canada, Ltd., is proud to play an increasingly important part.

One phase of our job is to continue to build the farm machinery needed to assure Britain of a never-failing food supply. To that end our great plant at Hamilton is building farm machines for Canada, Britain and the Empire, for food is vital in war. From coast to coast, thousands of Harvester-made trucks, and crawler and wheel-type tractors, are also at work in the service of the Empire.

Today our plant at Hamilton is engaged in a wide variety of war production, and this production is being greatly expanded.

Here are the War Products we Now Produce at Hamilton:

Steel forgings and stampings for the Bofors anti-aircraft gun.

Steel forgings for the quick-firing 2-pounder Mark VIII anti-aircraft gun.

Steel forgings for the Wellington bomber.

Steel forgings, forming, heat-treating and machining operations on the armor plate for the Mark III tank.

Steel forgings for the modified 2-pounder anti-tank gun, for the 2-pounder anti-tank gun carriage, for the 2-inch bomb thrower, for the 3.7-inch anti-aircraft gun, and the No. 27 artillery trailer.

Malleable castings for Bofors anti-aircraft gun and army motor vehicles.

In our plant all armor plate is machined and complete malleable track supplied for the Universal Carrier, one of the most important tank weapons being produced in Canada.

In the third year of the war effort, and until our arms shall triumph, Harvester of Canada will march in the ranks for Canada, the Empire, and Victory!

AN EYE TO THE FUTURE!

Like our feathered friend above we are on the lookout. We are watching carefully the trends of today as they will affect our business tomorrow.

The war with us (as with you) is creating tremendous difficulties. Shortage of materials and the need for supplying war industries are keeping us going day and night.

It may be that, if yours is not a priority industry, you have needs today which we might have difficulty in supplying. There is no point in our apologizing for this; the circumstances are beyond our control, but we are considering what we can offer you when the war is over . . . We expect to be in business. So do you. We shall be supplying heating products, and these and our other formed metal products will probably be better in design than today because the very exigencies of war production are giving us valuable experiences through which we can make them more efficient and durable.

This advertisement is not only to keep your goodwill but also to tell you that we have long term plans for market development. We want you to realize that your good-will is, and will be, a valuable asset in helping us to fulfil these plans.

Meanwhile, if our engineers can help you get even better results from your present equipment, or if there is any advice you need, we will be only too willing to help.

NORTHERN HI-LIFT HOIST

Gives You MORE HEADROOM

Headroom costs plenty when you have to build it into the plant. Every inch of height eliminated makes substantial saving. • The New Northern Hi-Lift Hoist enables you to get along with less total headroom because it uses more that is already available. It lifts close to its supporting beam—allowing higher piling in storage space — easier handling of bulky loads everywhere • It is stronger — has more lifting power. All mechanism is completely accessible. Mechanical brake parts may be removed without opening the gear case. • A variety of sizes and types—Northern is a long life, low cost Hoist.

SPECIAL EXPORT SECTION

by THE HONOURABLE JAMES A. MacKINNON

Minister of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa.

THE great extension of the war since June, 1941, to new battle-fronts in Russia, southwestern Asia and the Pacific means further vast changes in world economics and trade. It means increased demands upon the supplies of raw materials for war purposes and acceleration of their use, a heavier demand upon the shipping available for transporting war supplies, and the necessary protection in the Pacific as well as in the Atlantic, with all that such protection involves in slowing ship voyages and restriction of cargoes to what is strictly necessary as measured by war needs.

From the start of the war, Canada's external trade was affected. As the war has progressed, that trade has changed in character and assumed a new essentiality. Before the war, it accounted for about one-fifth of Canada's national income and was a large factor in Canadian prosperity and economic well-being.

During 1941 the value of the Dominion's exports was about four-fifths above the value for 1939. Since detailed statistics for our external trade are no longer published, no analysis of these exports can be given. However, while a considerable part of the heightened value is obviously due to the flow of war supplies, no small part continues to be made up of those goods which Canada has shipped in peace-time. For instance, food forms a large share of Canadian shipments to the United Kingdom—in this case being an essential factor in the prosecution of the war—and trade on a peace basis accounts for our increased exports to the British West Indies and the Latin American countries. The high level of exports to non-sterling countries is proving of great value in providing the foreign exchange so essential to our war effort.

During the months ahead Canadian manufacturers and exporters will undoubtedly face many difficult and perplexing problems in seeking to maintain the export flow of goods of a non-war character. Within the limitations placed upon them by the priorities of materials and labour for direct war requirements, they will serve both their own and their country's welfare by doing everything within their power to maintain such shipments abroad. They will be well advised also to pay particular attention to opportunities for a profitable re-orientation of the direction of our trade. The Latin American republics, to whose trading potentialities we have lately given special study, represented in the last pre-war year an import market valued at $1,490,000,000. These countries are now looking more than formerly towards Canada as a source of supply, and with the re-adjustment of world commerce that will follow the close of hostilities it is important that present trade with them be built on a sound foundation.

The recent trade mission, which I had the honour to lead, negotiated agreements with Argentina, Brazil and Chile, effected a modus vivendi with Ecuador, concluded satisfactory arrangements regarding exchange difficulties with Uruguay, and reached an agreement in principle with Peru looking toward a subsequent formal trade agreement. Upwards of $40,000,000 in trade is presently involved in the fields of trade thus covered and considerable expansion may be anticipated.

Most of Canada's exports are now under some form of control, either to prevent the enemy from getting supplies, directly or indirectly, or to safeguard our own needs and our commitments to other democracies. To facilitate the administration of export control, the authority and responsibility for the issuance of export permits has been vested in myself as Minister of Trade and Commerce, a branch of my department having been set up for the purpose. A Shipping Priorities Committee has also been established in this department to deal with the problems of shipping space for imports. The services it will render may prove of great value to manufacturers dependent upon raw materials from abroad.

Canada's war effort and future welfare is vitally dependent upon the maintenance and energetic promotion of export trade. As foreshadowed by the Charter of the Atlantic, trade will be in the forefront of the deliberations at the close of the war.

Department of Trade and Commerce

The Act of Parliament which in 1887, created the Department of Trade and Commerce and which was brought into effect by an Order-in-Council, dated December 5th, 1892, merely provided that there should be a Department of the Government of Canada to be called the Department of Trade and Commerce. The duties and powers of the Minister were defined to be the execution of laws enacted by the Parliament of Canada relating to such matters connected with trade and commerce generally, as had not been assigned to any other Department of the Government. In the succeeding years a wide range of services have been performed and at present the Acts administered by the Department include The Canada Grain Act; Electricity Inspection Act; Gas Inspection Act; Electricity and Fluid Exportation Act; Electric Units Act; Precious Metals Marking Act; Statistics Act; Water Meters Act; Inspection of Weights and Measures Inspection Act; Inland Water Freight Rates Act; An Act to place Canadian Coal used in the manufacture of iron or steel on a basis of equality with imported coal; Grain Futures Act; and the National Film Act.

The various functions of the Department are carried out by the following organizations:—

The Commercial Intelligence Service

The Commercial Intelligence Service, which is the chief agency of the Government for assisting export trade, consists of headquarters in the Department at Ottawa and a corps of Trade Commissioners and Assistant Trade Commissioners stationed abroad.

The headquarters staff comprises a director in charge of administration and an assistant director; four commodity divisions, namely, agricultural and fish products, metals and chemical products, forest products and manufactured products; an editorial division; and a trade directories division.

The function of the commodity divisions is to collect data relating to the commodities which Canada exports and to distribute information regarding export opportunities to Canadian exporters. By specializing on groups of commodities, the officers of the divisions obtain an intimate knowledge of the trade in these products and are able to render valuable assistance to exporters.

The Commercial Intelligence Journal, which contains the reports of Trade Commissioners and other trade information, is issued weekly for a nominal subscription of $1.00 per annum.

The Directory of Canadian Exporters, a copy of which is supplied to every Trade Commissioner, contains a record of every Canadian firm whom the Department knows to be exporting the commodities manufactured, the names of their foreign agents, etc. In turn, the Trade Commissioners compile for their own use and for the Department similar information on firms in their respective territories who are known to be interested in purchasing from Canada.

Both publications, which are in loose leaf form, are subject to continual revision, so that the information they contain is always up-to-date.

Prior to the war there were thirty-three offices, each in charge of a Trade Commissioner, and in the more important territories, an Assistant Trade Commissioner, together with adequate staff. Upon the invasion of many European countries by the enemy, a number of offices had to be closed and the Trade Commissioners and Assistant Trade Commissioners have been assigned for special duty in Canada. At present there are thirty offices, eighteen in Empire countries and twelve in foreign countries. Two specialists, a Fruit Trade Commissioner and an Animal Products Trade Commissioner, are stationed in London.

The duties of Trade Commissioners are to increase the export trade of Canada; to link up the Canadian exporter with the foreign importer; to study conditions and needs of the territories where they are located; to make direct enquiries or conduct preliminary surveys regarding the potential market for any product, reporting the exact kinds of goods wanted, competition to be met, and the best methods of packing, shipping and billing. Their services are always at the disposal of firms and individuals interested in Canada's trade expansion.

All trade developments the world over are being constantly reported by these Commissioners to the Department at Ottawa and this information is always available to Canadian manufacturers.

Assistance that can be given by Canadian Trade Commissioners

Despite the fact that many Canadian plants are fully occupied in connection with the war effort and also that the necessity exists for conserving most of the basic materials for war purposes, there are many commodities which are available for export. In any investigation which Canadian exporters may wish to make looking to possible markets for the products they manufacture or produce, Trade Commissioners are prepared to render a wide range of assistance, which may be indicated, in part, as follows:—

Commercial Information

1. Preliminary information relating to possible markets abroad for Canadian products, including:
  - (a) The present and prospective demand for their goods.
  - (b) Foreign and local competition (with specimens, catalogues and prices).
  - (c) Details of best selling methods.
  - (d) Reports on foreign buyers, though the Department cannot assume any responsibility in any opinions expressed by Trade Commissioners. They, however, will use their best endeavours to advise exporters as to the standing of such firms.
  - (e) Specifications of articles in particular demand.
  - (f) Definite inquiries for goods by foreign importers.

Agents, Buyers, and Distributors

2. Trade Commissioners will also:—
  - (a) Recommend to intending exporters the names of responsible parties in a position to act as agents or buyers and distributors.
  - (b) Give every possible assistance to such agents, etc., and will introduce them to influential individuals or associations who may be in a position to buy goods from Canada.
  - (c) Give confidential information, when so requested, as to the activities of agents appointed by Canadian exporters, or firms to whom sales have been, or are being, made.
3. Trade Commissioners can assist in advising Canadian exporters and manufacturers:—
  - (a) As to the best media in which to place advertisements and the form which such advertisements should take, i.e., their adaptation to the special requirements of the community.
  - (b) In the display of catalogues, price lists and samples where they can be seen by potential buyers.
  - (c) As to the distribution of trade literature and its probable cost.

General

4. (a) Trade Commissioners are always prepared to receive visitors from Canada and introduce them to possible buyers or agents, or put them in contact with such experts as legal advisers, interpreters, and shipping and banking representatives.
- (b) The good offices of Trade Commissioners can always be invoked with a view to settling difficulties which may arise between the Canadian exporters and buyers abroad.
- (c) Trade Commissioners will at any time provide such information as may be available as to freight rates customs, port dues, etc., so as to enable Canadian firms to quote prices for delivery overseas. They will be glad also to provide information respecting cost of travel, regulations applicable to commercial travellers, packing and marking of goods, shipping accommodation, storage arrangements, and any other foreign government regulations or conditions which have to be complied with.

Financial Arrangements

5. Particulars can be obtained with regard to:—
- (a) Terms of credit which may be given to foreign buyers.
- (b) Financial houses and banks who will discount bills or give credit.
- (c) Regulations governing the recovery of debts in foreign countries.
- (d) Disposal of goods abroad contracted for but not accepted by foreign buyers.
- (e) Infringement of trade marks or patent rights; and advice on registration.

Information Necessary to the Trade Commissioner

When a Canadian exporter desires the assistance of a Trade Commissioner in marketing his goods abroad, he should with the first letter provide that officer with the following:—

- (a) Catalogues and best export prices c.i.f. port of entry, or failing that, f.o.b. Canadian port. It is quite useless to send prices f.o.b. factory.
- (b) Details regarding process of manufacture if convenient.
- (c) If not too bulky, samples of what the firms have to offer should be forwarded—not necessarily a full range—and a draft or money order sufficient to cover the customs duties and landing charges on the samples.
- (d) Bankers' references.
- (e) The proportion of output which is available for export, time required to ship from receipt of order and the quantity for which orders will be accepted.
- (f) Details of the experience he has had in the territory served by the Trade Commissioner.
- (g) Information regarding previous connections, if any, which he has either with agents or importers. If connections still exist, what, if any, bearing will they have on fresh contacts that may be established through the efforts of the Trade Commissioner.

The Trade Commissioner will thus be in a position to make a survey of his territory, report the opportunities for the lines to be exported, and can then either place the exporter in communication with reliable importers or recommend suitable agents.

What the Canadian Exporter can do for the Trade Commissioner

The meagre information frequently furnished by Canadian exporters places a serious handicap on the Trade Commissioner in his efforts to market their products.

A general statement, therefore, of the facts about the exporter, his banking references, whether he is already engaged in foreign trade, and for what period and to what extent, are some of the essentials which should be given in the first letter either to the Department or to a Trade Commissioner, particularly the latter. He also wants general data about the commodity which the exporter wishes to sell in that particular market, noting any special advantages pertaining to the line offered, particularly as compared with well-known articles of the same type from other countries. He also wants to know exactly what the manufacturer is himself willing to do to place his goods in the new field: the basis on which sales would be made to the importer or on which goods could be offered for sale by a recognized agent, and the commission that would be paid the latter; what would be required of an importing house or agent in order to obtain the agency for the line; whether the manufacturer would send consignment stock or samples and in what quantity; whether he is prepared to advertise or to co-operate in advertising and to what extent; the facilities possessed by the manufacturer for export shipment, and the kind of supervision that is exercised by him over the packing of goods destined for a distant market.

Prices

Prices should never be quoted from an interior manufacturing point in Canada. Where quotations c.i.f. port of destination are not practicable, they should be given f.o.b. steamer, but it is strongly recommended that prices should be quoted c.i.f. This is a most important point, as the foreign buyer has no definite knowledge of the charges likely to be incurred if quotations are f.o.b. cars at port of shipment and freight rates from some interior point in Canada to the seaboard are unobtainable in foreign countries. He has no means of knowing insurance rates, or the elements that enter into the fixing of the premiums. As a rule he is unable to obtain a quotation of an outward freight rate at an inward port, as the general practice of steamship companies is to refer a request for a freight rate from (say) Montreal to Auckland to the agent in the former city, although an approximate rate may be quoted. The foreign buyer is at a distinct disadvantage unless prices are quoted c.i.f.

Discounts

Discounts should be printed, or typewritten, preferably on a folder or slip accompanying the catalogue. In submitting an illustrated descriptive catalogue to prospective customers the importer should not be placed in the position of having to disclose the exact terms on which the goods are offered to him.

Gross and Net Weight

A knowledge of the gross and net weights per unit quoted is essential. Without these the prospective purchaser is unable to estimate laid down costs.

Summary of Points to be Noted

The fullest possible information in regard to the commodity and complete details on the following points would greatly aid the Trade Commissioners in the intelligent handling of inquiries addressed to them as to the introduction and subsequent marketing of Canadian goods on behalf of exporters:—

1. Cable address, code used, and special code words not in the regular code books.
2. Bankers' references.
3. (a) The basis on which prices are quoted, whether c.i.f. main foreign ports; f.a.s. Canadian ports; or f.o.b. vessel.
- (b) Are prices in Canadian or American funds?
- (c) If prices are c.i.f. and transshipment has to be made, are such items as consular charges and disbursements at port of transshipment and/or unloading for account of buyer?
4. Are quotations firm, or subject to change without notice due to fluctuations in costs of raw material?
5. On what quantity basis are quotations made? Can prices be reduced on quantity orders, and if so how much?
6. Are orders subject to acceptance by exporter?
7. What brand do lines bear, and are these to be sold under this brand in foreign markets?

8. What is the nature of packing? Heavy wooden crates, boxes, new bags or burlap?
9. Are lines stocked and available for immediate shipment? If not, how long after receipt of order will goods go forward?
10. What are your terms? Is there a special discount for cash?
11. What is the gross and net weight in pounds? Measurement in cubic feet?

With the foregoing information on hand, supplemented by recent catalogues and descriptive literature, and, if not too bulky, samples—not necessarily a full range—Trade Commissioners are put in a position to give the best service to Canadian exporters and can either place them in communication with reliable importers or recommend suitable agents.

Foreign Tariffs Division

Information on the world's customs tariffs and related governmental trade control measures is furnished to exporters and others concerned by the Foreign Tariffs Division of the Department of Trade and Commerce. The Division answers specific enquiries, issues leaflets and circulars, and prepares articles for the Commercial Intelligence Journal. It co-operates with other branches of the government service in assembling data for tariff negotiations between Canada and other countries.

The work entails assembly of extensive reference material comprising tariffs and customs laws with amendments and rulings, reports of Canadian Trade Commissioners abroad, miscellaneous official reports and journals, and general reference books. Normally, the International Customs Tariffs Bureau at Brussels, created in 1890, under a convention of many countries, issues translations of the world's tariffs, but this Bureau has not functioned during the European war.

As well as study of tariff schedules to determine rates applicable to particular goods, the work of the Foreign Tariffs Division includes investigation of commercial treaties, methods of valuation of goods for duty purposes, anti-dumping legislation, Empire content required for various tariff preferences, prescribed forms of certificates of origin, invoicing and consular procedure, merchandise marks laws, food standards, animal and plant pest regulations. In recent years import licensing, quota allotments, exchange restrictions and similar systems of controlling trade in foreign countries have grown to be of great importance. Since the outbreak of the European war in 1939, import licensing was adopted widely in British countries. The Division's activities extend to furnishing data on all such laws and regulations as would affect Canadian exports to any of the numerous separate customs areas of the world.

Subsidized Steamship Services

Under the Mail Subsidies and Steamship Subventions Branch of the Department of Trade and Commerce, subsidies for ocean services are paid to assist in the maintenance of trade communications between Canada and other countries for the use of Canadian exporters and for the maintenance and development of our foreign markets; and also for the carriage of mails between Canada and certain foreign countries.

Local services are subsidized to assist in maintaining adequate transportation by water from the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of Canada for passengers, mails and freight.

Since the outbreak of war nearly all local subsidized services, and part of our subsidized ocean services, have been continued, although the latter have been reduced to some extent by war conditions, including the requisitioning of certain ships for purposes connected with the war.

In addition to carrying on these activities, either the Director of the Branch, or the Inspector of Subsidized Steamship Services has represented the Department of Trade and Commerce on inter-departmental committees formed either before or after the outbreak of war, including the Emergency Legislation Committee, the Committee on Ships and Aircraft, the Committee on the Conservation of Canadian Shipping, the Sub-Committee of Defence Co-ordination Committee on War Risk Insurance, and the Committee on the Exportation of Key Commodities.

The Canadian Shipping Board

The Canadian Shipping Board was established by Order-in-Council, P.C. 4251, dated 20th December, 1939. Having a limited ocean marine of her own, Canada has always had to rely to a great extent on British and foreign tramp ships and liners to carry her overseas trade. When war came the tonnage of such ships available contracted severely because the British Government was forced to institute strict control over all United Kingdom vessels and neutral shipowners were prohibited, or became reluctant, to carry cargoes between belligerent countries. As a result, the Department of Trade and Commerce received numerous appeals from exporters for assistance in obtaining ships or shipping space and, although it was able in many instances to assist, the fact became obvious that some special organization would be required to deal with wartime shipping problems.

These problems were considered by an interdepartmental committee, comprised of senior civil servants, which recommended that a formal organization be created, and The Canadian Shipping Board was, therefore, established in December, 1939. Its broad purpose was to centralize Canada's wartime shipping problems and to devise and co-ordinate measures for meeting them. More specifically, it was created to help maintain Canada's export trade by assisting Canadian exporters to find liner space for their shipments or to charter vessels where these were necessary for bulk exports. In addition, the Board filled a need for a Canadian governmental agency capable of dealing directly, and co-operating effectively with the administrative departments of the United Kingdom Ministry of Shipping which, following the outbreak of war, had assumed complete control over British merchant ships and shipping.

The powers given to the Board were such as to cover the objects set forth above. It took over the Ship Licensing Board's function of controlling the foreign voyages of all Canadian vessels exceeding 500 gross tons to ensure that they were employed to the greatest advantage in the prosecution of the war. In April, 1940, control over the purchase and chartering of all vessels over 500 gross tons by all Canadian interests was assumed by the Board, the chief purpose being to enable it to co-operate with the British Ministry of War Transport in its efforts to avoid inflation in neutral charter rates and shipping values.

On August 1, 1941, this chartering control was extended, when the Board, in conjunction with the United States Maritime Commission and the British Ministry of War Transport, placed in effect definite ceilings on time charter rates payable for vessels.

Among other duties the Board was given the task of adapting to Canadian conditions and of supervising in so far as the Dominion is concerned various measures introduced to control foreign shipping. One of these was the British Ship Warrant scheme, for which the Board devised the so-called Ship's Privilege Licence system as a Canadian supplement, the purpose being to assist in the blockade of enemy countries by discouraging foreign vessels from engaging in trades helpful to the enemy.

The Board, which consists of eight members, reports to the Government through the Minister of Trade and Commerce. The Deputy Minister of that Department is Chairman and the Director of Trade Routes and Steamship Subsidies is a member. In addition, the Inspector of Subsidized Steamship Services, who is a Naval Reserve Officer, represents the Department of National Defence for Naval Services on the Board. The remaining five members of the Board consist of three representatives from the Departments of External Affairs, National Revenue and Transport respectively, together with the Transport Controller, and the Director of Shipping who, in addition to being a member is the Board's chief executive officer.

Communications in regard to the business of the Board should be addressed to The Secretary, The Canadian Shipping Board, Room 178, West Block, Ottawa.

Publicity and Advertising Branch

Department of Trade and Commerce

The Publicity and Advertising Branch of the Department of Trade and Commerce was organized in 1927. The primary objects of this Branch were to disseminate informative reading matter throughout Canada and to various parts of the world, exclusive of Great Britain and Europe, and also to place certain advertising in publications interested in various phases of trade and commerce, both internal and external. The Branch distributes every week the Canadian News Letter, of approximately 2,500 words, covering a fairly wide range of Canadian activities. This news letter is sent to all Trade Commissioners, and to quite a number of other persons directly interested. The Branch also distributes every week for Canadian consumption a compendium of news received from the Canadian Trade Commissioners. The advertising placed by the Branch is largely directed to executives, and stresses in particular the importance of seeking new markets and maintaining the old.

Under the supervision of the Branch and with the close co-operation of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the Bureau of Translations, a Spanish edition of the Canadian handbook for distribution largely in Latin American countries was issued during the year. This has received a very favourable reception. A further edition in Portuguese for distribution in Brazil is under preparation.

Exhibitions and Publicity Services

The Exhibitions and Publicity Services are a consolidation under the Department of Trade and Commerce of all the publicity services—advertising, exhibitions, film activities, etc.—which prior to 1938 were carried on by various government departments and agencies engaged in promoting the sale of Canadian products in the United Kingdom.

Supervision of the vote for government advertising and publicity, which is provided for in the estimates of the Department of Trade and Commerce, is entrusted to an Advisory Committee on Publicity under the chairmanship of the High Commissioner for Canada. The members of the committee include the Chief Canadian Trade Commissioner in the United Kingdom, the Director of Exhibitions and Publicity and representatives of the Department of External Affairs on the staff of the High Commissioner. An opportunity to attend meetings and submit items for the agenda is afforded representatives in London of other government departments, including Agriculture, Fisheries, and Mines and Resources. The London office also includes a Trade Publicity officer and an Exhibition Commissioner.

The latter, as head of the Canadian Government Exhibition Commission, is assisted by a staff of designers, decorators and workmen whose activities are directed towards affording practical assistance to Canadian manufacturers and exporters in developing the sale of their products in international markets. The Commission maintains an office in Ottawa to arrange and supervise displays of Canadian products at exhibitions held in Canada and the United States.

In Ottawa an Advisory Committee on Trade Publicity Overseas comprises representatives of the Department of Trade and Commerce, External Affairs, Agriculture and Fisheries. It was established with the object of securing effective collaboration between the several departments concerned with government advertising and publicity overseas.

The outbreak of war brought about many changes in these activities. Participation in exhibitions in the United Kingdom and the preparation and arrangement of Canadian exhibits, except those of a permanent nature, have practically ceased, and trade promotion has been confined to supplying advertising matter to meet specific requests. On the other hand, film and press publicity has increased.

There has been a marked expansion in the activities of the Ottawa office of the Canadian Government Exhibition Commission, particularly in respect of participation by Canada in national and local exhibitions held in the United States. These activities have been directed toward interesting exhibition visitors in the trade and investment opportunities offered by Canada and particularly in the facilities for recreational enjoyment afforded United States tourist visitors to the Dominion.

Under the supervision of the Ottawa office of the Commission, displays depicting Canadian tourist attractions have been prepared and installed at a number of Sportsmen's and Travel shows held in various cities throughout the United States. Additional publicity was provided by other government departments and agencies, including the Canadian Travel Bureau of the Department of National War Services and the National Parks Bureau of the Department of Mines and Resources, through distribution by their representatives of maps and literature descriptive of Canada's recreational facilities.

Canada Grain Act

Under the Canada Grain Act of 1912 the Board of Grain Commissioners for Canada was created as a semi-judicial and administrative body to administer the Act. Its duties and powers are to provide for the inspection and weighing of grain; to license and supervise the operation of grain elevators; to register warehouse receipts for grain delivered to terminal and eastern elevators; to collect and collate grain statistics; to maintain a grain research laboratory; to operate terminal elevators constructed by the Dominion Government; and to inquire into any matter upon or without complaint made relating to the handling of grain under the Act. It also administers the Inland Water Freight Rates Act.

The board, which consists of a chief commissioner and two commissioners, has its offices in Winnipeg. Four assistant commissioners, stationed respectively at Winnipeg, Calgary, Saskatoon and Fort William, investigate complaints and thereafter make a full report to the board. In addition to the executive offices, which include the secretary with clerical staff, the Licence and Bonding and Statistics Branches, the organization comprises the Inspection, Weighing and Registration branches, the management of the Canadian Government Elevators, the Grain Appeal Tribunals to decide on appeals from decisions of grain inspecting officers, Committees on Grain Standards to select and settle standards for the different grades of grain in the Eastern and Western divisions, and the Grain Research Laboratory.

Inspection offices are located at Winnipeg, Calgary and Edmonton for primary inspection, at Fort William and Vancouver for terminal and final inspection, at Montreal and Toronto for resampling and checking western grain passing through the Eastern division, and grading grain grown in the Eastern division. Inspection services are also maintained at all other points at which terminal elevators are situated. The Weighing Branch provides weighing services on all grain delivered to or shipped from terminal elevators and maintains staffs at all points at which terminal elevators are situated. The Registration Branch records all terminal and Eastern warehouse receipts and transfer receipts for grain unloaded into terminal or Eastern elevators, and cancels these receipts when the grain is shipped. Of the public terminal elevators constructed by the Department of Trade and Commerce only those at Moose Jaw, Saskatoon, Lethbridge, Calgary, Edmonton, and Prince Rupert are now maintained and operated by a general manager under the board. The Grain Research Laboratory at Winnipeg acts in an advisory capacity to the board, conducts investigations to determine the value of the different grades and varieties of grain, and investigates problems connected with grading, transportation and storage, moisture content and other problems peculiar to grain.

The Board is also charged with the administration of The Grain Futures Act, 1939. The provisions of this Act, however, had not been put into force at January 1st, 1941.

Under The Prairie Farm Assistance Act of 1939 the Board collects from producers in the three Prairie Provinces and the Peace River District of British Columbia one per centum of the purchase price of all Western wheat, oats, barley and rye sold to licensees under the Canada Grain Act.

Export Permit Branch

At the outbreak of war various restrictions were imposed on the export of certain commodities for different reasons. One Department would restrict exports in order to conserve supplies for civilian use, while other Government Departments placed materials of strategic war value under control in order to insure that they did not reach the enemy.

The number of commodities placed under export control by Orders in Council continued to increase so that a situation existed early in 1941 that was confusing to exporters due to the multiplicity of Government Agencies concerned with the issuance of Export Permits.

The Government, therefore, on April 8th, by Order in Council P.C. 2448, decided to centralize in one authority the responsibility for the issuing of Export Permits. It was also decided at this time to consolidate in one schedule all those commodities which had been placed under export control by numerous Orders in Council and to classify them by groups in accordance with the classification of the Bureau of Statistics. The Government further decided that since the Minister of Trade and Commerce is the Minister chiefly responsible for and concerned with the promotion of Canadian export trade that the new branch should be established under this Department. Accordingly on May 5th, the Department of Trade and Commerce became solely responsible for export control. It was laid down, however, in the Order in Council establishing the new branch that before an Export Permit was issued on behalf of the Minister of Trade and Commerce that the Export Permit Branch should consult with and secure the advice of a responsible official of any Board, Administrator or Controller established to deal with the particular product for which an Export Permit was requested.

At the present time Canada's exports are all under some form of export control either by reason of destination or because of the supply position. Many products have been placed under export control so that the Canadian list may conform as closely as possible with those products under export control in the United States, in order that Canada may not be used as a "back door" for products that are being allowed to be exported freely from the United States to Canada.

Export Permit applications after receipt by the Export Permit Branch are distributed to the various Controllers, Administrators and other Government Departments likely to be interested in the particular commodity in question. Applications are considered from the point of view of Canada's war requirements and those of the Democracies. While Canada may have a surplus of many metals, there is actually a deficiency in most metals when the requirements of all the Democracies are taken into account. Canadian civilian requirements have also to be considered. Some products have to be conserved in order that our commitments to the United Kingdom for say—canned salmon, bacon or cheese may be fulfilled, while other supplies such as animal feedstuffs have to be conserved in order that there will be sufficient feedstuffs available to produce the necessary pork and milk products for the United Kingdom. Finally, the destination and the consignee have to be checked.

Exporters are urged to accept foreign orders subject to their ability to obtain an Export Permit and to apply for a Permit on receipt of order. No manufacturing for export should be commenced until the necessary Export Permit has been obtained. It furthermore cannot be too strongly stressed that manufacturers quoting on British Empire or foreign orders should insist on full details as to the purpose for which the material is intended. Exporters should also obtain Essentiality Certificates where these are available from the country of import in order that a proper decision may be reached when the application is received.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics

A Commission on Statistics in 1912 recommended a series of specific reforms and enlargements in Canadian statistics, and a policy of statistical co-ordination for the Dominion, under central direction.

Following the recommendations of this report, the office of Dominion Statistician was created in 1915 and three years later the Dominion Bureau of Statistics was set up by statute as a central statistical organization.

Since its organization in 1918, the Bureau has created out of many heterogeneous units a unified, nation-wide statistical system in which the correlation of the several subjects and their interpretation from a comprehensive national viewpoint has been the primary objective. By means of Dominion-Provincial statistical conferences held from time to time, a useful degree of co-operation and uniformity of statistical classification and method has been achieved and progress along these lines continues. These main advantages of statistical centralization have not only been substantially attained, but the treatment of statistics, not merely as aggregations of figures, but as primary data from which complex social and economic phenomena may be interpreted, has been emphasized. This view of a true national statistic as revealing the controlling economic forces that operate and their interplay, and the value of such a statistic in administrative planning along national lines, involves, of course, an added function of the Bureau, viz., its usefulness as a national laboratory for economic and social research. This is a development that, as yet, is in its infancy but the foundation of such a service, comparable with the increasing importance of Canada in the economic and political world, has already been laid.

As now organized, the Branches of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics are: I. Administration; II. Demography—Census and Vital Statistics; III. Agricultural Statistics; IV. Fisheries and Animal Products; V. Mining, Metallurgical and Chemical; VI. Forestry and Allied Industries; VII. General Manufactures; VIII. External Trade (Imports and Exports); IX. Internal Trade; X. Construction; XI. Transportation and Public Utilities; XII. Financial Statistics; XIII. Judicial Statistics; XIV. Education Statistics; XV. Census of Institutions; XVI. Industrial Research and Social Analysis.

While primarily serving the Government, the Bureau realizes that, in a democratic community, every citizen is a part of the Government and should be well informed regarding the social and economic conditions of his country. Accordingly, the Bureau furnishes to all applicants answers to all manner of questions on all sorts of topics. In particular, it supplies to business men of all classes information regarding business conditions and statistics regarding production, imports, exports, prices, stocks, etc., of all kinds of commodities, thus enabling them to direct their operations more effectively to their own greater advantage and to the greater advantage of Canada. Special tabulations may be made, or other investigations carried out at a fee based only on the extra clerical costs to the Bureau.

Review of Canada's Foreign Trade, 1940

The effect of a full year under war conditions is reflected in Canada's trade during 1940. Both imports and exports registered substantial increases over the preceding year. Imports increased by 44.5 per cent. to $1,081,951,000, the highest total since 1929. Domestic exports gained 27.5 per cent. being valued at $1,178,954,000, largest since 1928. Each month recorded an increase over the corresponding month of 1939, the sole exception being domestic exports in December, which registered a decrease of 3.4 per cent. as compared with December, 1939.

The increases in declared values of both imports and exports were due to higher prices as well as greater physical volume. Using 1935-1939 average = 100 as a base, the index of average values of imports was 8.3 higher than in 1939 while physical volume gained 35.8. In exports, the average values advanced 12.6 with the volume increasing 13.9 over the corresponding figures for 1939.

Due to the greater increase in imports, the favourable balance of trade declined to $111,267,000 in 1940 as compared with $184,866,000 in 1939. This does not include non-monetary gold, the net exports of which amounted to $203,000,000 in 1940.

Gross Customs duties collected on imports stood at $139,194,000, an increase of $35,828,000 over similar revenue in 1939, and represented a per capita collection of $12.19. Imports per capita were $94.72, while exports reached a total of $103.22 per capita.

Proportions of Trade in Raw and Manufactured Products

The stage attained in the industrial development of a country is indicated by the character of the goods it imports and exports. In the early years of Canada's development imports were made up chiefly of manufactured products and exports of raw and semi-manufactured products. Since the opening of the twentieth century this has been almost reversed; a large percentage of the imports consisting of raw and semi-manufactured products for use in Canadian manufacturing industries and the exports consisting predominantly of products which have undergone some process of manufacture. In fact, the leading manufactures of Canada are for the processing of raw materials in the production of which Canada excels, and many of these processed domestic products are marketed abroad. Furthermore, as the population of the country grows, the range of elaborated goods formerly imported, which may be manufactured on a competitive basis of mass production within the country, expands, so that there are now many industries in Canada, serving the domestic and even foreign markets, using imported raw materials such as rubber, cotton and sugar. Since the opening of the present century Canada has passed through much the same stages of development in her economic life as did the United States during the last quarter of the nineteenth century, although the trend in Canada has been more pronounced in increasing the proportion of partly and fully manufactured goods as compared with raw materials exported rather than in increasing the proportion of raw materials compared with that of partly and fully manufactured goods imported.

In Canada, grains (chiefly wheat) and in the United States, raw cotton, grains (principally wheat) and raw tobacco are the leading commodities which comprise the bulk of the exports of raw materials. It is of interest to note the results in Canada and the United States when certain staple raw materials of farm origin, which are reproducible annually, are eliminated, such as grains, fresh fruits and vegetables, seeds and raw tobacco, for both countries, and raw cotton for the United States. The results, for the years 1900 to 1940, are set forth in the following table:—

Gold in Canadian Export Trade

Exports of gold in Canadian trade statistics were distinguished in previous reports as between monetary and non-monetary. Monetary gold exports were described as those which entailed a reduction in the Dominion's monetary gold stocks. All other gold exported (classed as non-monetary) was shown as merchandise, and included with the total merchandise exports.

The fact that gold is a money metal gives it peculiar attributes which distinguish it from other commodities in trade. In particular, the movement of gold in international trade is determined almost exclusively by monetary factors. The amount of exports may fluctuate widely from month to month owing to other than ordinary trade or commercial considerations. In addition, gold is generally acceptable. It does not have to surmount tariff barriers and is normally assured a market at a relatively fixed price. For these reasons provision was made in previous trade reports for a supplementary table showing exports from Canada excluding all gold.

It is further to be noted, gold does not move in international trade in any direct or normal relation to sales and purchases. It may be bought or sold abroad without moving in or out across the frontier, the sales or purchases in such cases being recognized by simply setting aside or "earmarking" the gold in the vaults of the central bank. Trade statistics deal only with physical movements, sales or purchases of gold which do not involve an actual movement being more properly regarded as an "invisible item" and taken care of in the "International Balance of Payments" statements. Changes in the Bank of Canada's stock of gold under earmark do not enter, therefore, into the trade statistics.

The publication of statistics showing the gross imports and exports of gold has been temporarily suspended as from September, 1939. Statistics for periods prior to this time have been accordingly revised to exclude all gold formerly included in the total of merchandise exports.

Statistics showing the net exports of non-monetary gold, including changes in stocks held under earmark, are published as a supplement to the trade figures, and are given below.

Principal Exports from Canada, 1940

Total exports of Canadian produce increased by 27.5 per cent. over 1939 reaching a value of $1,179 million, the highest since 1928. All the main commodity groups contributed to the increase with the exception of Agricultural and Vegetable products. In this group, larger shipments of grains and milled products were more than offset by decreases in fruits, vegetables and raw tobacco. The large advance in the exports of Wood and Paper reflects the loss of the European sources of supply to the United States, resulting in a greater demand for Canadian products, principally newsprint paper and wood pulp.

The following table shows the Exports of Canadian produce, by main commodity groups during the last three calendar years.

Distribution of Canada's Trade by Continents and Countries

Canada's increased imports in 1940 were spread over all continents with the exception of Continental Europe and Africa. The United States was responsible for the largest increase and supplied 68.8 per cent. of Canada's purchases.

The United Kingdom regained first position in purchases of Canadian exports, taking 43.1 per cent. The United States accounted for 37.6 per cent. Among the other continents, Africa recorded the largest increase and placed third in the list of Canada's customers, ahead of Oceania and Asia, both of which showed slight decreases.

The following statement on "Imports from Forty Leading Countries" shows how predominant the two great English-speaking countries are as a source of Canadian imports. The United States supplied 68.8 per cent. of the Dominion's imports in 1940, while the United Kingdom, although having about one-quarter of the United States' share in Canada's imports, had, nevertheless, almost six times as large a share as British Straits Settlements, which since 1937 has ranked third. The countries shown in the table account for about 99 per cent. of total imports in each year.

The table below shows "Canada's Domestic Exports to Forty Leading Countries". The countries shown account for 98 per cent. of total domestic exports in each year. The United Kingdom was first in each year except 1939.

The share of the United Kingdom and the United States in Canada's export trade rose somewhat in 1940 to 80.7 per cent.

Statistics of Canadian exports, by countries, should be read with the qualification that all the goods shown as exported to some countries may not finally be consumed in those countries, while on the other hand other countries may ultimately buy and use more Canadian goods than the Canadian export statistics indicate.

Agriculture

Important adjustments took place in Canadian agriculture during 1941. The increased demand for feed stuffs, both at home and in the United Kingdom, resulted in a general expansion of the industry. Greatest emphasis was placed on the production of live stock and live stock products. Wheat production was reduced in 1941 as a result of the policy adopted by the Government to discourage wheat production and to encourage the growing of live stock feeds. Unfavourable weather conditions reduced yields somewhat but feed supplies should be adequate to support the increases in live stock numbers. Marketings of hogs established new records and the output of live stock and live stock products generally were at a high level. The 1941 apple crop was again relatively low. The tobacco crop was substantially higher than that of 1940.

Fisheries

The total value of output of the Canadian fisheries in 1940 was $45,118,757 compared with $40,075,922 in the preceding year. These totals comprise the value of the fish as marketed in the various forms—fresh, canned, smoked, dried, etc. To the total value in 1940 the sea fisheries contributed $38,910,058 or 86 per cent., and the inland fisheries $6,208,699 or 14 per cent. Compared with the preceding year the value of the sea fisheries shows an increase of $4,937,748 and the value of the inland fisheries an increase of $105,087, making for both fisheries, combined, an increase of $5,042,835.

The salmon industry is by far the most important, its value of production of $14,170,496 in 1940, representing 31 per cent. of the total for all kinds of fish. Following are herring, with a value of over six million dollars, and cod with a value of nearly five million dollars while lobster with slightly over three million dollars is fourth on the list of the chief commercial fishes.

Fish marketed for consumption, fresh, including fresh fillets, had a total value in 1940 of $18,672,804, the canned product was valued at $17,872,776, and the dried at $1,275,903 leaving $7,297,274 as the value of fish marketed in all other forms, as green-salted, smoked, boneless, oil, meal, etc.

Among the provinces British Columbia takes first place in order of marketed value of product while Nova Scotia is second and New Brunswick third. Following is a statement showing by percentage the position which each province occupies in relation to the total for Canada: British Columbia, 48 per cent.; Nova Scotia, 22 per cent.; New Brunswick, 11 per cent.; Ontario, 7 per cent.; Quebec, 4 per cent.; Manitoba, 4 per cent.; Prince Edward Island, 2 per cent.; Alberta, 1 per cent.; Saskatchewan, 1 per cent.

The quantity of fish of all kinds, including shell fish, taken by Canadian fishermen during the year amounted to 12,199,666 cwt. with a value at the point of landing of $23,630,047 compared with a catch of 10,682,357 cwt. and a landed value of $21,931,437 in 1939.

Trade.—In the calendar year 1940 total exports amounted to $31,650,889 of which the greater portion went to the United States, while the United Kingdom was our next best customer. The most important single export is canned salmon followed by fresh whitefish, fresh lobster, canned herring, fresh salmon and dried cod. For fresh fish the United States is the chief market. Canadian imports of fish in 1940 amounted to $2,475,237.

Forest Resources

In Canada there are approximately one hundred and sixty different species and varieties of plants reaching tree size. Only thirty-one of these are coniferous, but their wood forms 80 per cent. of the standing timber and 95 per cent. of the sawn timber. While the actual number of species of deciduous-leaved trees seems large in comparison to their commercial importance, out of a total of some ninety species and varieties only four or five are worthy of comparison with the conifers.

Of the total area under forest at the present time, amounting to 1,220,405 square miles, about 381,515 square miles carries merchantable timber, and 389,050 square miles carries young growth which if protected from fire and other damage will eventually produce merchantable timber. All this area is so situated as to be commercially exploitable at present. The remaining 449,840 square miles is considered as non-productive or unprofitable to operate under present conditions, although most of it will undoubtedly become commercially exploitable in the near future. In round figures some ninety per cent. of Canada's forest area is still owned by the state.

Forest Depletion

It has been estimated that Canada's total forest production in 1939 involved the cutting of 2,824,837,000 cubic feet of standing timber. This constitutes only the depletion for use and to it must be added the volume of material destroyed by fire, which averaged between 1929 and 1938 391,000,000 cubic feet of merchantable timber and the young growth equivalent to practically the same amount. Insects and fungi destroy annually at least 700,000,000 cubic feet, making an estimated total drain on our forest resources of more than 4,307,837,000 cubic feet in 1939. The latest available estimate places Canada's forest resources at 273,656 million cubic feet of standing timber. There is a steady increase in volume taking place in all healthy stands of timber due to annual growth; this can be stimulated by the application of scientific forest management. It is now a profitable investment to plant trees in Canada under certain conditions.

Production

The production of sawn timber in Canada reached its maximum in 1911 with a reported cut of 4,918,202 M ft.b.m. The 1939 production represents an increase of 5.2 per cent. in quantity from 1938. The products of the group of industries under sawmill operations are compared for 1938 and 1939 in the preceding table.

Fur Trade

Great changes have taken place in the fur trade since the early days when it dominated all other pursuits and inspired the exploration that opened to colonization the vast country which is now Canada; but the historic trade retains a position of great importance in the commerce of the Dominion, and although the advance of lumbering, mining and agricultural settlement and improved methods of capture have driven fur-bearing animals farther into the wilds, there is a vast area in the north, unsuitable for settlement, where, with adequate protection, a fur-bearing animal population may be maintained, which will furnish each year, a large harvest of furs.

CONSERVATION—The conservation of the fur bearers of Canada is a matter coming under the jurisdiction of the respective Provincial and Territorial Governments. Nevertheless, the Dominion as a whole is concerned in the conservation of fur and of all wild-life resources. It was to co-ordinate the wild-life conservation efforts of the various Dominion Departments that the Advisory Board on Wild Life Protection was organized in 1916. The Board is specially authorized to advise with respect to the administration of the Migratory Birds Convention Act and the Northwest Game Act, but has dealt with many other problems of wild-life conservation. Through conferences of provincial and Dominion officials which were convened for many years by the former Department of the Interior, but are now arranged by the Department of Mines and Resources, uniform and concerted action has been taken and the conservation of Canada's wild-life resources has been advanced. The general policy followed with regard to the fur-bearing animals has been mainly along two lines; first, to so regulate the taking of animals by limitation of catch or close season as to prevent their extinction in districts where natural conditions provide a suitable habitat; and second, to provide sanctuaries in strategic places which serve as reservoirs from which large areas of surrounding wild country may be naturally restocked.

Fur Farming—The industry of fur farming now plays a most important part in the fur trade of Canada, the value of pelts of ranch-bred animals representing approximately 40 per cent. of the total value of the raw fur production of the Dominion. For many years fur farming was concerned almost entirely with the silver fox, but more recently mink raising has become an important branch of the industry. Other kinds of fur-bearers—red fox, cross fox, blue fox, raccoon, skunk, marten, fisher, fitch—are also found on the farms, but their numbers are small in comparison with the numbers of silver foxes and minks. To the list of fur-bearing animals on Canadian fur farms has been added the valuable chinchilla, a native of South America. The 1939 census of fur farms records three farms—one in Saskatchewan and two in Alberta—raising chinchillas. (1940 not available).

The chief markets for Canadian furs are London and New York; the trade tables for the 12 months ended Dec. 31, 1940, show a total of $15,617,244 worth of raw furs exported. Some years ago Montreal took a position as an International fur market, holding the first Canadian fur auction sale in 1920. At the sales held in Montreal during the year 1940 the pelts sold numbered 1,088,377, while the value amounted to $4,448,087. Fur auction sales are held also at Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver. The manufacture of fur goods (coats, capes, scarves, muffs, etc.) constitutes an important Canadian industry, giving employment in 1939 to 3,800 persons and producing goods valued at $18,279,866. There is also the fur dressing and dyeing industry which operates on a custom basis. The number of skins treated in 1939 was 6,237,505, the chief items being muskrat and rabbit.

Minerals

Canada's mineral industry is second in importance among the primary industries of the Dominion. It is surpassed in value of output only by the great basic industry of agriculture and brings to the nation a prestige far beyond the monetary measure of the mineral output.

In 1939, among the mineral producing countries of the world, Canada stood first in nickel, platinum metals and asbestos, second in radium and uranium, second in gold, third in silver (aluminum from imported ores) and copper and fourth in lead and zinc.

Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia are the three leading mineral producing provinces though Alberta and Nova Scotia lead in coal production. The output of minerals from Manitoba and Saskatchewan has increased during recent years and new developments in the Northwest Territories indicate great mineral possibilities in that area.

Employment

For many years, surveys of the employment situation in the leading industrial groups have been made monthly by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. More recently, the surveys have been extended to depict the situation in the finance group, in addition to that in the following eight industrial divisions:—manufacturing, mining, logging, transportation, communications, construction and maintenance, services and trade. From the spring of 1941, the collection of complementary statistics of the earnings of those employed in these groups was undertaken. The data on earnings constitute an excellent index to the current purchasing power of a large proportion of the wage-earnings population, thus providing information of great value not only to those immediately concerned with the organization of the industrial war effort, but also to all students of economic and social conditions, as well as to those planning production and sales campaigns and, in general, forecasting the trends of business.

In the first ten months of 1941, statistics of employment were tabulated from an average of 12,550 establishments in the eight leading industries, whose staffs averaged 1,481,900. The working forces varied from 1,316,775 at January 1 to 1,657,300 at the beginning of October. Calculated on the 1926 average as 100, the general index of employment in the first ten months of 1941 was 149.1. This was many points higher than the average of 121.2 in the same period of 1940, previously the highest on record. From April 1, 1941, until October, the curve reached successive new all-time high levels. During the first ten months of the year, the index number rose by 23.5 per cent., a gain which exceeded that in any other year for which statistics are available.

On the whole, the improvement in 1941 was widely distributed, both geographically and industrially. Particularly important expansion was indicated in manufacturing, largely to meet war-time requirements. The index number in manufacturing advanced by almost 30 per cent. from the opening of 1941 to October 1, when it stood at 185.0, or 28.7 per cent. higher than at the same date in 1940, previously the maximum for October 1.

As a result of wartime demands on industry, the gains in employment in the production of durable goods were outstandingly large, the personnel of the co-operating establishments in the heavy industries having increased by nearly 45 per cent. in the twelve months ending Oct. 1, 1941; in the period since the commencement of the war, manufacturers in this category have rather more than doubled their staffs. The production of non-durable goods also showed important expansion in 1941, while the advance during the period of the war amounted to 36 per cent. These gains are due not only to the existence of a much greater volume of purchasing power in the hands of the general public, but also reflect the large-scale production of consumers' goods for the use of those in the armed forces at home and abroad.

The non-manufacturing industries have also shown considerable improvement in 1941, although the gains were not equal to those indicated in manufacturing; logging, mining, transportation, communications, construction and maintenance, services and trade have all afforded considerably more employment in 1941 than in 1940. In some of these industries, new all-time maximum index numbers were indicated. In the finance group an unusually high level of employment was also reported in recent months.

The payrolls disbursed by employers at the first of October, 1941, to those on their staffs in the last week in September, amounted to $43,694,382, representing an average pay envelope of $26.36 for the 1,657,326 men and women on their pay lists.

From the period of observation in May to that in September, the payrolls distributed by the co-operating establishments rose by 13.9 per cent.; this gain accompanied that of 8.4 per cent. in the index of employment. Thus, the growth in the reported earnings in recent months has considerably exceeded that indicated in the number of employees, despite the increasing dilution of labour. This situation results from a number of factors, including the intensification of the war effort; it is also probable that the growth in earnings from the early spring to the autumn is seasonal.

The manufacturing establishments furnishing data at October 1 reported 962,317 employees, whose earnings in the last week in September were $25,784,186, a per capita average of $26.79. The factories furnishing data employed just over 58 per cent. of the total numbers on the payrolls of all the firms co-operating in the October 1 enquiry, while they distributed 59.0 per cent. of the total earnings reported. From the end of May, 1941, to the last week in September, the aggregate earnings disbursed in manufacturing had risen by 16.6 per cent.; this gain accompanied that of 10.2 per cent. in employment in the same period.

Canada's rich endowment in water power resources is the outflow of a fresh water area more than two and a half times the combined water and land area of Great Britain. The abundance and wide distribution of these resources and of their development is shown in Table 1. (above). The water power resources included in this tabulation provide for a total commercial installation of about 43,700,000 h.p. (almost five times the installation at January 1, 1942), seasonal shortages being provided for by water storage, by interconnection with plants operating under different load and water conditions or by fuel auxiliary plants.

Canada's total hydraulic installation of 8,845,038 h.p. is divided in Table 2 below according to the purpose of the various developments. More than 98 per cent. of the electricity sold by central electric stations for power purposes is produced by water power and this combined with the water power installations maintained by the manufacturing industries results in more than 80 per cent. of Canada's industrial power equipment being operated hydraulically.

The figures listed in Columns 2 and 3 in the above table represent 24-hour power and are based upon rapids, falls and power sites of which the actual drop or the head possible of concentration has been measured or at least carefully estimated. Many unrecorded rapids and falls of undetermined power capacity exist on rivers and streams from coast to coast. These will only become available for tabulation as more detailed survey work is completed; this is particularly true in the less explored northern districts. Also, no consideration has been given to the power concentrations which are feasible on rivers and streams of gradual gradient, where economic heads may be created by the construction of power dams, unless definite studies have been carried out and the results made matters of record.

Column 4 gives the total capacity of the water wheels actually installed throughout the Dominion; these figures should not be placed in direct comparison with those in Column 2 and 3 to deduce the percentage of the available water power resources developed to date. The water wheel installation throughout the Dominion averages 30 per cent. greater than the corresponding maximum available power figures for developed sites calculated as in Column 3. The above figures, therefore, indicate that the at present recorded water power resources of the Dominion will permit of a turbine installation of about 43,700,000 horse power. In other words, the present turbine installation represents slightly less than 20¼ per cent. of the present recorded water power resources and the figures in Table 1 may be said to represent the minimum water power possibilities of the Dominion.

Column 2 includes only hydro-electric stations which develop power for sale.

Column 3 includes only water power ACTUALLY DEVELOPED by pulp and paper companies. In addition to this turbine installation pulp and paper companies have motor equipment for operation by hydro-electricity purchased from the central electric stations totalled in Column 2, aggregating more than 1,315,000 h.p., making a total of more than 1,965,000 h.p. actually developed for the manufacture of pulp and paper. Large amounts of electricity are also purchased for use in electric boilers rated at more than one and three-quarters million horse-power.

Column 4 includes only water power actually developed in connection with industries other than the central electric station and pulp and paper industries. These industries also purchase power from the central electric stations totalled in Column 2.

Column 5 totals all water wheels and hydraulic turbines installed in Canada.

Financing Export Trade

To any manufacturer who realizes the difficulties of producing an article which fills the requirements of foreign markets, and of securing satisfactory customers for that article against the competition of the other manufacturing countries of the world, the importance given to the subsequent details of the business may seem, at times, a little exaggerated. It is undoubtedly true, however, that close attention to those details of export business which follow the consummation of a sale, are of the greatest importance. The foreign customer not only wants standard quality goods at a competitive price, but also wants those goods delivered to him within contract time, packed in a proper way and accompanied by all the necessary documents properly made out to the last detail; and if the customer does not get what he wants along these lines, he will take his business elsewhere. Documents which do not arrive as soon as the goods, or a missing consular vise or consular invoice, will cause delays and perhaps fines. A description of the goods which may appear entirely reasonable at this end, may not be at all what is required to secure the proper tariff interpretation in the consignee's country. Such incidents are so vexatious to importers that no firm can expect to secure or retain customers unless close attention is paid to the requirements of their market along these lines. For a firm whose personnel does not know these requirements by experience, it is not always a simple matter to obtain the necessary information. The admission of imports is subject to regulation and restriction in many countries at the present time and the release of exchange in payment thereof strictly controlled by local authorities. Exporters entering any new field should familiarize themselves with such regulations before making definite commitments. In the present article, an endeavor is made to indicate the assistance which banks can render in this connection, as well as banking requirements in relation to the handling and financing of foreign shipments.

Extension of Credit by Exporters

Credit is an element in most business transactions. It can be understood that it is even more necessary in foreign than in domestic trade, since more time is usually taken up by the movement of goods between seller and buyer when these two are located in different countries, and Custom House delays are often a factor. The seller who receives a request for the extension of credit in connection with a sale has three things to consider:—(1) The financial standing of his customer; (2) the custom of the foreign market in regard to credit terms on the particular commodity being dealt in and (3) his own ability to finance the business.

The seller's bank can obtain for him a report on the prospective customer's resources and the custom of the market in regard to extension of credit. It should be pointed out here, however, that to obtain complete information by cable is usually a very expensive process, so that every effort should be made to anticipate the need for it before the matter becomes urgent. Again, the quality of the information varies. In countries where Canadian bank branches are located, it is often more complete than when received from correspondents. Sometimes, however, accurate detailed information is impossible to obtain. The banker will always do his best to advise the customer whether, in his opinion, the credit risk is reasonable, but obviously there are cases hard to decide, where the seller's judgment must be the deciding factor. Referring now to the third point mentioned above, the ability of the seller to finance the business, it is obvious that he does not want to tie up his capital in goods in transit, or in 90 days' paper awaiting payment, if he can avoid doing so. He may not be able to avoid doing it in all cases, and a certain proportion of exporters' drafts, therefore, go forward on a collection basis. For the rest, all good exporting houses have arrangements with their banks, whereby they can discount sight or time drafts on good names abroad. The willingness of the bank to enter into such an arrangement naturally depends on the financial standing of their customer, and the amount of credit involved.

Bank Discounts

The negotiation of clean bills is tantamount to making an unsecured loan to the drawers, with the added security of the drawee's name after acceptance.

In discounting both documentary and clean bills, the bank's main security, in the first instance, lies in the responsibility of the drawer. In the case of any trouble with the drawee, the bank is in a weak position unless its power of recourse to the maker is reasonably certain to be productive of satisfactory results. Drawers, therefore, must have a capital adequate to bear the loss which may easily arise from an unfortunate export transaction. The extra risk contained in export business does not lie in the greater lack of probity of foreign houses, but in the room which exists for errors and misunderstandings on account of the distances separating buyer and seller, and the difficulty and expense of conducting a long distance legal action. Misunderstandings are specially liable to arise in the case of transactions effected by correspondence. Litigation is often a lengthy and expensive process; in many cases the results are not worth the outlay.

The risk which underlies the discounting of documentary foreign drafts is not always clearly understood and it is not an uncommon thing for a firm which has been unable to finance an export shipment to criticize its bankers for their refusal to discount drafts covering the merchandise. This firm has probably been told, quite truly, that exporting involves the granting of credit. It now gets a profitable and relatively large order from a foreign house on whom good reports have been received. The terms may be sight, thirty or sixty days—quite moderate credit—yet the bank may be unwilling to discount the seller's documentary drafts. The Canadian firm cannot understand the refusal since, in its opinion, the bank is fully covered by the merchandise until acceptance, and, in the case of sight drafts, until payment. The answer is this: that this security of merchandise is often more apparent than real: that many causes for refusal of delivery may crop up, and the goods may then be a thousand miles from a good market, and unsaleable except at a sacrifice. The principal backing is then the capital of the drawer. Where this warrants the extension of the credit involved, the draft will be discounted. Firms of the class that we have referred to were probably of moderate capital, though of good standing. Their domestic business used up their resources to the hilt; and an unsuccessful excursion into the export field for other than a moderate amount might have brought them into a bad position and left a slow loan on the hands of the bank which thought it was discounting a self-liquidating bill.

Exchange Clauses

The fact that a bill is not payable in the currency of the drawee's country at once gives rise to the question of how the conversion rate between the two currencies shall be established. If this were considered a matter for arrangement between the collecting bank and the drawee, it is not difficult to imagine the complications which might arise. Would a bill for $1,000 United States currency drawn on a firm in Buenos Aires, Argentina, be settled for by the drawee paying to the bank an amount of local paper currency which, at par, would equal $1,000 U.S. or would the drawee perhaps consider settlement made by the tender of a sight draft on New York for the face amount of the bill—a settlement which would involve a loss to the drawer, if he had expected to be paid by cable? All these and other possible points of issue, are settled by the addition of a clause to the draft indicating the basis on which settlement shall be effected. The usual clauses for dollar and sterling drafts on foreign countries read respectively as follows:—

Dollar Drafts on Foreign Countries

Payable at the bank's selling rate on day of payment for sight drafts on.....
(Canadian dollars—Montreal, U.S. dollars—New York).

Sterling Drafts on Foreign Countries

Payable at the bank's selling rate on day of payment for sight drafts on London.

Drafts drawn at ninety days' sight on South American points are not uncommon. In the case of such drafts, the drawer will have to realize that he is to lose interest, not only during the transit period of the draft and return remittance, but also during the time occupied by the draft in arriving at maturity. Thus he will have to include in his quotation interest at the prevailing rate made up as follows:—

Transit to and from Argentina and delays.....	45 days
Elapsed time to maturity date of draft.....	90 days
	<hr/> 135 days

Some drawees are slow about accepting drafts. Therefore, only experience can show exactly what loss of time should be allowed for in such transactions.

It is advisable to include bank commission and other charges in the face amount, if the drawer expects to recover the amount of his invoice in full without deduction.

There are special customs in connection with the collection or negotiation through London of bills drawn on Australia, New Zealand, Africa and the Orient; the details are somewhat too long to be included in an article of this nature, but they may be found in the booklet "Financing Foreign Trade", published by the Royal Bank of Canada.

Instructions to Banks

Exporters, when placing bills with a bank, either for discount or for collection, should be careful to give the bank full instructions in regard to the handling of the drafts in question. Instructions as to whether documents should be surrendered against payment or against acceptance, are so obvious that it is only by some clerical error that they are ever omitted, but there are numerous other points which are frequently not covered when bills are placed with a bank:—the omission sometimes leads to unnecessary trouble and expense. Example of what such instructions may consist of is given below:

Protest for <sup>Non-Payment</sup>
Non-Acceptance
Permit Drawee to inspect merchandise before accepting draft.
Hold for arrival of goods.
Payable at collecting bank's selling rate for <sup>Sight</sup>

Letters of Credit

A considerable volume of international business is financed by means of bankers' credits. When exporters can manage to have customers open such credits, this is obviously a very desirable way of doing business, because risk of loss and any trouble regarding financing are eliminated. While buyers have to pay the bank at their end a moderate commission for this facility, the extra expense is often compensated for by the more favorable quotations they can secure from sellers if payment is effected in this manner.

When Canadian exporting firms have credits opened in their favour, it will pay them to discuss with their bankers the sense and terms of these documents, if they are in any doubt regarding the provisions embodied therein, or the protection afforded. For example, the credit may be issued by a foreign bank, with whose standing they are not familiar. The Canadian bank can advise them whether the foreign bank in question is entirely responsible. Again, the credit may have a revocable provision which needs to be carefully considered. It is not possible to discuss here the varied aspects of this class of banking document, but it may be said that great care has to be exercised by an exporter to live up meticulously to all the requirements of a credit. Some of these may seem to him absurd and unnecessary, but he must remember that the bank at this end has no authority to vary the instructions in any way, shape or form. If they require alteration, the matter should be taken up as soon as advice of the credit is received, instead of waiting until the shipment has been loaded on board steamer and the documents brought to the bank.

No reference has been made in this article to shipping documents, although these are important from a banking point of view when drafts are received from clients, either for collection, or for discount or under terms of Letters of Credit. In the first case, the bank needs proper documents in order to render the client good service; in the second and third cases, it needs them for its own protection. This section of the subject is dealt with in the Royal Bank of Canada booklet which has previously been referred to, viz., "Financing Foreign Trade".

Foreign Exchange Control Board

The above section on "Financing Export Trade" covers the situation as it existed prior to September 1939. Since the outbreak of hostilities various forms of exchange control have been put into effect by Canada, the United Kingdom and most other parts of the British Empire. The purpose of this section is to summarize foreign exchange control regulations in Canada insofar as they affect exports from Canada.

General Principles

The main purpose of foreign exchange control is to balance as far as possible Canada's income and outgo of United States dollars in order to ensure that United States dollars will be available as required to obtain vital war and other imports and at the same time to meet contractual obligations payable in United States currency. Exports are Canada's largest source of United States dollars and it is a fundamental principle of exchange control that all exports from Canada to the United States and to all other countries outside the sterling area should produce United States dollars or foreign currencies which may be freely converted into United States dollars and that such United States dollars be made available to the Foreign Exchange Control Board. Payment for exports to countries in the sterling area may be obtained in any foreign currency or in Canadian dollars since the operation of similar Exchange Controls in those countries ensures that Canadian dollars used to pay for exports from Canada have been derived through properly authorized channels.

Export Licence

In order that the Board may ensure that Canada's exports do make available the proper kind and amounts of foreign exchange, it is necessary for it to know what exports are being made and when and by whom payment for such exports has been or will be received. Accordingly, a licence on the Board's Form B, which is consolidated with the export entry form required by the Canadian Customs, is required for every export of goods from Canada for which Customs ordinarily require an export entry. The form is not required in any other case. A Collector of Customs and Excise issues Form B on behalf of the Board at the time the relative Customs export entry is filed with him, although in some cases where the export is not going to produce foreign exchange, the prior approval of an Authorized Dealer (a chartered bank) or of the Board is required.

The Board does not exercise any control over the kinds of goods which may be exported and its licence serves merely as a declaration that goods have been legally exported from Canada, of the kind and amount of payment which has been or is to be received and of the time when such payment has been or will be received. The Board's licence does not authorize any export which is prohibited or for which a licence or permit is required under any other law.

Payment for Exports

Exports to the United States and to all other countries outside the sterling area must ordinarily be made for payment within six months of shipment in United States dollars or foreign currencies which may be freely converted into United States dollars. Exports to the sterling area may be made for payment in sterling or in any other foreign currency or in Canadian dollars. NOTE: The "Sterling area" means and includes territories under the sovereignty, protection, suzerainty, or mandate of His Majesty (except Canada and Newfoundland) and also includes Egypt, the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, Belgian Congo, Ruanda-Urundi, Iceland, the Faroe Islands, French Cameroons, French Equatorial Africa (composed of Chad, Ubanghi-Chari, Middle Congo and Gaboon), French Settlements in India, French Oceania, Syria and Lebanon.

Except with the special permission of the Board, goods already imported into Canada which have been or are to be paid for in United States funds may not be exported to a sterling area country other than for payment in United States dollars unless the goods have been processed in Canada.

When an exporter receives payment in foreign exchange for an export, he is required to offer the foreign exchange for sale to his Authorized Dealer and to complete a declaration on the Board's Form C (Declaration of Foreign Exchange Offered for Sale) as evidence that he has obtained and made available to the Board the proper kind and amount of foreign exchange arising out of the export.

If price lists are issued in terms of Canadian dollars subject to eventual payment in United States dollars, the conversion rate which should be applied is the official buying rate for United States dollars quoted by the Board. It may be noted that at the time of writing, the official buying rate is 10% premium on U.S. funds and this rate has been in effect since the inception of Control. Therefore, if an exporter has an invoice for $100 Canadian currency, he must secure at least $90.90 United States currency in order that he may ultimately be credited with the face value of $100 Canadian currency when he sells his foreign exchange to the bank. Therefore, to arrive at the amount of United States dollar payable, the face value of the invoice in Canadian dollars should be discounted by 9.09%.

In connection with the requirement that exports to non-sterling area countries be paid for in U.S. funds, the Board has announced that Authorized Dealers will pay spot rates for forward sales of United States dollars. Accordingly, a Canadian exporter can cover himself for forward exchange in United States dollars without any additional cost. Suppose a Canadian exporter has an export shipment amounting to $1,100 in Canadian funds, but converts this to $1,000 United States funds and draws a draft on his customer abroad for 90 days, and presents this draft to his bank in Canada for collection. At the same time that he presents this draft for collection, he can sell forward his $1,000 United States currency, which he will not receive for 90 days, for $1,100 Canadian currency.

Special Permits

As outlined above, the ordinary procedure with respect to exports of goods is that the exporter must account for and declare and sell to his Authorized Dealer as soon as received the foreign exchange received for each export. In order to facilitate the carrying on of ordinary commercial transactions and the continuance of the previous practices of certain types of exporters, the Board has, however, established various special procedures. In appropriate cases, special permits are issued by the Board under which the permit holder, instead of accounting for the proceeds of each individual shipment, furnishes the Board with periodic reports containing the information the Board requires. The Board's examiners may examine the permit holders' books and records in order to verify the reports made to the Board and obtain any other information required.

Export of Capital

One of the primary purposes of the Foreign Exchange Control Order is to prevent unauthorized exports of capital and exporters should note that, unless the approval of the Board has been obtained, it constitutes an export of capital and is an offence under the Order—

- (a) To export from Canada to a country outside the sterling area and Newfoundland property for which no settlement has been or is to be received, or
- (b) To sell any property for export to a country outside the sterling area or Newfoundland, or to sell any property exported from Canada to such a country, or to export from Canada to such a country any property which has been sold on terms which provide for payment of a price less than the fair value thereof or on terms which provide for payment more than six months after shipment, or
- (c) To fail to take reasonable steps to collect a debt owing by a non-resident with respect to goods or other property exported or to be exported from Canada to a country outside the sterling area or Newfoundland or to grant an unreasonable extension of time for payment of any such debt.

Further Information

Full information respecting the various Foreign Exchange Control Board forms required to be filled out by Canadian exporters is contained in circulars which have been issued by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association from time to time. More detailed information concerning the Board's policy with respect to exports may be found in the Board's Bulletin No. 2 entitled "Exports of Goods" which may be obtained on request from any Office of the Board.

Five Methods of Doing Export Business

On the following pages will be found articles by experienced Canadian exporters who have proved by results obtained that their methods are correct.

These articles do not include all known methods, but they do cover the majority of recognized methods that so far have proved successful in Canada. Many firms operate combinations of these methods, depending on the types of markets to which they are selling. Each method should be considered in the light of the characteristics of one's own business and of the possible proportions to which the export side of it may grow.

The five methods range from the comparatively simple task of handling a highly specialized line by mail and the co-operation of Trade Commissioners to the handling of a very wide range of articles all used in the same trade by means of the establishment of wholesale branches of the Canadian house abroad.

Each method has its dangers and difficulties as well as advantages, and each is specially suited to certain general classes of business or types of distribution in export markets. No matter what method is adopted there is little doubt that a personal investigation of overseas markets by a principal or chief executive of the Canadian firm is the best preliminary in the development of successful export business. The initial costs of an investigation of this type may seem high at the time, but in most cases expenditures of this kind have proved to be a successful investment.

METHOD NO. 1

Development of an Export Trade Through Branches in Other Countries, Owned by the Parent Exporting Manufacturer in Canada

(Suitable for companies with a diversified product, most or all of which can find extensive export markets subjected to world-wide competition.)

The manufacturer who is endeavouring to build up an export trade to provide an increased and permanent outlet for his products and not simply looking for a channel through which to dispose of some surplus stock provided for domestic trade or to take up some plant capacity temporarily available should consider carefully the advisability of doing so through his own branches abroad, provided, of course, that his line is of a nature to warrant this consideration.

In contemplating the organization of a branch in a foreign country a great many conditions require to be taken into consideration. The territory should therefore be carefully surveyed to ascertain not only the present demand for his product but the possibility of increase in this demand for the future and how this increase is to come about. The state of the local industry and the competition therefrom, as well as competition from other sources requires to be looked into; also the possibility of securing a sufficient number of dealers of a satisfactory type to handle the lines; the general financial standing of these dealers and their attitude toward meeting obligations when due. Study should also be made of local preferences and prejudices, as it is surprising the influence these have in some parts of the world. Customs Tariffs and the possibility of revisions thereto; location for branch headquarters at a point where there are ample facilities at reasonable cost for the reception and storage of bulk stocks, as well as convenient and adequate transportation service for distribution, also require to be looked into. These, and a number of other matters which will suggest themselves, should be carefully investigated in order to give the question intelligent consideration and arrive at a decision.

If, after investigation, the manufacturer is satisfied that a sufficient demand for his product exists in a certain country and is also satisfied that conditions generally would warrant consideration being given to the establishing of a branch selling organization there, then the advantages and disadvantages of the branch system will require to be carefully weighed.

Marketing through a branch selling organization presents several advantages:

1.—The entire effort of the selling organization is concentrated on the one line and there are therefore no diverting interests as is frequently the case where a jobbing house handles a large range of goods. The manufacturer's products under the branch system cannot at any time be treated as a side line to be ignored when goods returning a greater margin of profit can be sold. Travellers and salesmen are not tempted to follow the line of least resistance as is possible where they have optional lines to offer to a dealer.

2.—If a line is one requiring service of any kind, the manufacturer can ensure his own and his customers' interests being properly cared for by providing a service staff having a thorough and expert knowledge of his goods, and it is recognized that an efficient service, where required, brings increased trade.

3.—A branch selling organization enables a manufacturer to keep more closely in touch with the requirements of the market and therefore be in a position to meet, or even anticipate, changing demands on the part of the purchasing public.

4.—In operating through a branch selling organization, the manufacturer can plan and carry on an advertising and selling campaign best suited to the sale of his lines and is free to take such action as he may consider necessary to meet any unusual conditions which may arise from time to time without having to depend upon or to consider first the interests of the importing jobber.

5.—From the standpoint of financial risk, instead of having one or two large accounts, the manufacturer will have a number of smaller accounts scattered throughout the country. In the opinion of many, a number of smaller accounts is an advantage as, after all, there is something to be said in favour of not putting the eggs all in one basket.

6.—It is reasonable to expect that the expense involved in the operating of a branch selling organization could be met by the additional margin obtained through selling direct to the dealers instead of to a large importing jobber. Even if the Branch could not do better than break even on its operations, the manufacturer would still have the advantage of his manufacturing profit on a larger volume.

7.—An esprit de corps can be developed which is a valuable asset in any selling organization.

There are, of course, some disadvantages, for instance:

1.—During a seasonal slackness or a period of temporary depression, when the demand for the manufacturer's particular product may drop off, the selling organization is handicapped through not having other lines with which to fill in.

2.—The necessity of carrying stocks which, in dealing with a large importing jobber, would very likely have been sold outright. This carrying of stocks also involves the making of provision against obsolescence.

3.—The handling and following up of numerous smaller accounts.

4.—A somewhat increased overhead at headquarters because of the necessity for executive supervision.

There are no doubt other disadvantages, some more applicable to one line than to another; however, the advantages of operating through a branch selling organization would appear to much more than offset the disadvantages, assuming, of course, that the manufacturer's line is sufficiently large and varied, the demand sufficient, and conditions generally favourable to operating in this way.

Except for the Chief Executive and perhaps one or two key men, an overseas branch should be staffed by men who speak the language of the country and who have an intimate knowledge of the country, its requirements, the people and their customs. The Branch Manager, or Chief Executive, should be one who is thoroughly familiar with the Company's products and policies and one who possesses good sound judgment. Located as he usually is, thousands of miles away from headquarters, he is frequently called upon to deal with important problems requiring prompt attention which cannot be conveniently or adequately discussed with his Head Office by telegraph or even by telephone, which is now available.

Several Canadian companies are already operating through branch houses abroad. No doubt any of them would be willing to assist other manufacturers contemplating operating in the same way by supplying whatever information they may have available.

METHOD NO. 2

Development of Export Trade Through Resident Agents or Representatives Visited at Intervals by Executive of Canadian Exporting Manufacturer.

(An excellent method that has worked out successfully in many lines as it provides for gradual growth and expansion, coupled with establishment of close personal relations with representatives and informing travel by export executive and an interchange of visits to the plant by representatives. This should be read in close conjunction with Method No. 3, with which it is closely allied.)

From a sales standpoint there are many advantages in having a resident agent, particularly if it is possible to have him visit the plant, get thoroughly acquainted with the product by closely following up through all stages of manufacture, meet the personnel of the Company, familiarize himself with the method of packing and general handling of export shipments.

A few of these advantages are as follows:

(1) A resident agent can approach customers with more confidence in the product as he is able to converse freely in the language of the country. From personal experience in the Far East and Continent of Europe, have found in many cases difficulty in getting anywhere on account of not being able to speak the language.

(2) A resident agent can keep principals posted on competitive lines and demands for necessary improvements to meet market conditions.

(3) Is in the position to revise and add to mailing lists of already established and prospective customers.

(4) Being in close touch with the financial standing of customers is able to take action on principal's behalf in the event of collection difficulties. In this connection might mention we give our resident agents authority to act on our behalf. If draft is refused, instead of costly cables and delays, it is immediately referred to the resident agent for further instructions.

(5) Is able to transfer shipments in event of disputes. In one or two cases, after shipment had left Canada, it was necessary to hold up on account of credit, which was taken care of by cable and turned over to resident agent for disposal elsewhere.

(6) Is in the position to investigate orders or enquiries which may be received by principals direct.

The advantages of visiting resident agents, as the writer sees them, are many; preferably the President, Vice-President, General Manager, or Sales Manager, as in most cases it is best to make a decision on the spot so to speak. Naturally it is better that this executive should be in close touch with the Export Department.

Visits of this kind bring the line up to date, establish confidence between agents and principals, in addition to getting first hand information as to the class of house from which orders are being received.

Might I repeat again it is very desirable if possible, to have the agent visit the factory. The executive can very often obtain information regarding the sale of competitive lines which the agent does not always seem able to obtain. Manufacturing information can very often be picked up. A general size-up of the agent's ability and his connections can be intelligently made. How often have we sized up a man by correspondence and on making his acquaintance found a totally different person than we had pictured.

In some cases the resident agent is the most economical way of conducting export business, providing, of course, you have a real live agent. There is not any definite rule that I know of to select agents or representatives. I recall one time in Australia, of interviewing a resident agent who was not interested, but later on was approached by the same firm's branch in another city, by one of their Directors who saw possibilities in our line. The firm in question turned out to be live representatives.

There seems to be some element of luck in selecting agents or representatives. In order to avoid liability it might be better to classify as resident representatives not resident agents.

METHOD NO. 3

Development of Export Trade Through Resident Agents Abroad With No Personal Visits by a Representative of the Canadian Exporting Manufacturer.

(A very large number of Canadian manufacturers use this method, gradually moving towards Method No. 2, which supplements and strengthens it.)

The policy of appointing a resident Agent abroad without any personal supervision from a representative is one which is attended with many risks and much dissatisfaction unless preceded beforehand by a very careful investigation into.

- (1) The standing of the individual or Company in the business community.
- (2) His or their financial responsibility.
- (3) Integrity.
- (4) Business capabilities.
- (5) Number and kind of other lines carried.

Too often the manufacturer looking for export business will accept the first application received for an agency arrangement, without making the ordinary investigations which would be made upon receipt of a similar application on the domestic market. Even at the present time applications are constantly being received by exporters from many bright and well-intentioned people who, after seeing or hearing of a new line, think they can sell it against old and established importing agencies who have probably controlled their market on this line for a great many years and who if approached by some obscure individual with a competitive line would give it scant consideration. It is, therefore, vitally necessary that the business standing of an individual or company should be known, in order for your product to receive fair and impartial consideration.

This will also protect the intending exporter from the unscrupulous type of individual who sends in his application under an assumed company name, on very elaborately got up business note paper, with the intention of obtaining a good set of samples for nothing.

What emphasis should be placed on financial responsibility will depend entirely on whether the agent is going to act on a purely commission basis, merely soliciting orders and passing them on to the manufacturer for shipping and financing, or to buy direct himself and in turn resell to the trade.

The integrity of an agent should be unquestionable, because any suspicion of sharp practices would immediately reflect on the company appointing the agent, and result in a definite restriction and loss of trade.

The business capability of the proposed agent should also be scrutinized; there should be a reputation for being thoroughly acquainted with all lines carried, ability to promote sales, judicious in the selection of customers and the granting of credit risks. Much profitable export business can easily be turned into serious and heavy losses unless the latter requirement is carefully followed.

Then it is very essential to know the number and kind of other lines carried, to ascertain if they are in any way complementary or competitive. It may be that the applicant is already carrying too many lines and it has been found in practice that there is a tendency to push only those lines easy to sell, or giving the greatest remuneration. Even if the agent is thoroughly reliable, it is difficult to become thoroughly acquainted with every item carried, with the result that the added new lines may suffer in comparison with the older ones. Often an agent will undertake to carry a competitive line just to prevent some other agent more favourably placed from obtaining it, sending in just sufficient orders to create the impression that an effort is being made to place the line on the market, but at the same time actually throttling its development.

There is no difficulty in obtaining resident agents overseas as an advertisement in any export Journal will bring a host of applicants, the majority of whom will guarantee to handle the line offered in the most efficient manner. The problem to solve is to be able to pick out from the replies received the one who will handle your line most successfully.

A much safer way is to entrust your agent problem to the Canadian Trade Commissioners, seeking their advice after giving them full information about your product.

It is not to be suggested that the right person or company will always be selected and in order to guard against errors of judgment and to protect them as far as possible, it would be advisable to limit the contract of any new agent appointed to one or two years, during which time you will have ample opportunity to check up and study the results obtained. If not satisfactory, the contract can then be broken off at the end of the stipulated period.

From the above it is very obvious that only the best type of individual or company should be chosen as your representative and the success or failure to open up an export market will depend very materially upon this.

The decision to appoint an individual or a company will depend to a great extent on the nature of the commodity to be exported, the distribution desired, and the extent of the market. In some countries it may be advisable to confine your agency to a large company who are in touch with all wholesale outlets, and while this may restrict the distribution, it has this compensation that credit risk is practically reduced to a minimum, and in some cases goods are paid for immediately upon receipt at the usual cash terms. Should it be the policy of the exporter to place his goods through as many outlets as possible, then the individual agent provides the best possible medium because he buys nothing for himself but simply solicits orders for the manufacturer and the greatest advantage lies in the ability of such a man to get business for his principals, from all possible buyers in his field. Another added advantage is that being constantly on the ground, he is able to take immediate advantage of every opportunity the moment it arises, and to adjust troubles and complaints that are almost certain to arise in the conduct of any business, whether it is foreign or domestic. Furthermore, there is bound to arise the question of extended and disputed drafts and he can safeguard payments and collections for his principals.

The agent's duties are not confined only to the securing of orders and some of his time will have to be spent in adjusting difficulties as they arise, also explaining away injudicious letters from the home office, for oftentimes a good connection is lost through a lack of tact and courtesy on the part of the sender.

The chief disadvantage in appointing an agent without personal supervision lies in the almost impossibility of making him or them acquainted with changes in business policy by means of a letter, no matter how well constructed it may be. It is then that close personal contact can explain away in a few minutes any misgivings held, what otherwise may take several letters spread over a considerable period. When export business is being operated at little or no profit it is difficult to explain by letter why an advertising allowance cannot be made or unreasonable claims accepted.

In summing up, it can safely be said that satisfactory business can be obtained by this method, although of course it will always lack that undefinable something which always comes with personal contact.

METHOD NO. 4

The Development of Export Trade Through Export Merchants, Export Buying Houses or Indent Houses.

(This method or really two methods in one, with many similar characteristics, offers a wide field for certain varieties of products but if used solely should be chosen with the utmost discretion. The Indent House Method can fit in by consent with Methods two and three and can be attempted simultaneously.)

Co-operation with reliable indent houses in suitable cases provides a means of training members of manufacturers' staffs in export technique and provides specialized selling and personal contacts in export markets while retaining the identity of manufacturers goods through to the customer.

In the "Export Merchants" discussion prospective exporters would do well to ponder seriously over the disadvantages mentioned.)

There are many manufacturers in Great Britain who have been able to secure a splendid volume of business overseas without ever having had even an export department of their own. They have secured this business through London houses operating as Export Merchants or through London Indent firms.

EXPORT MERCHANTS operate really as Export Wholesale Houses. They make an arrangement with a Manufacturer by which they will have the control of anything he makes that may be shipped overseas. If the Manufacturer receives an enquiry from abroad, he refers it to this Export Merchant. The Merchant buys for cash from the Manufacturer and turns around and quotes the merchandise to firms overseas at a price that will give him a profit. He takes all the credit responsibility and even arranges for proper distribution in any market where there would seem to be a demand for this particular product. He has Representatives who travel to different countries in the world and in this way keeps in touch with his connections abroad.

There are many advantages to the Manufacturer from handling his export business in this manner:

1. It costs him nothing to sell his goods. He may at times find it necessary to supply something in the way of samples but this is likely to be a small matter and if it really amounts to something, he can usually arrange to supply the samples at regular prices, less a sample discount.

2. He sells for cash and has no credit risk. Manufacturers are often concerned and rightly so, about the credit standing of firms overseas who may wish to buy their goods. Selling to the Export Merchant, he gets his money even sooner than for domestic sales.

3. He avoids the necessity of having an export department in his business. The Export Merchant looks after all details of shipping, insurance and invoicing and all the Manufacturer has to do is to ship his goods to Seaboard as directed and submit ordinary domestic invoices. The overseas correspondence is conducted by the Export Merchant, who is competent to look after this even if it be in a foreign language.

4. He increases the volume of business passing through his plant and in this way lowers his unit cost of production. This enables him to compete more successfully in his own market.

The disadvantages of this method are not great. There are one or two features that should be considered:

1. He will probably not know his customers overseas and if for any reason, the Export Merchant breaks his connection, he may lose his overseas business. However, the Export Merchant is not likely to do this so long as he gets good treatment from the Manufacturer. It costs money to develop a market and no one wishes to have to do it with a new product if he already has one established.

2. He will need to make sure that the Export Merchant has a distinct possibility to get business for it has been known to happen that representation of a line has been gotten to keep it off the market. For that reason, it should only be given for an initial period of not too long so that if business does not result, he can take other means to get it.

INDENT FIRMS are really Buying Houses or Purchasing Houses in one country for firms located in other countries overseas. Many overseas firms prefer to have all their business attended to by their own buying offices located in centres of countries where manufacturing industries are plentiful. Such firms as these are often a good means of getting manufactured goods introduced to their overseas clients.

1. They usually buy for first class firms only.
2. They pay cash for all purchases.
3. They attend to all details of shipping, insurance, invoicing and correspondence.

On the other hand:

1. They take no responsibility for sales at all but simply place orders on definite instructions received from their clients.

2. They buy only for their own clients and it may be possible there are other firms in overseas countries who might be interested in the goods. The indent houses will not offer the goods for sale to other than their own clients. Their distribution therefore is limited unless a Manufacturer is dealing with a number of Indent Houses operating in the same overseas markets.

The number of Export Merchants and Indent Firms in Canada has been limited, due probably to the fact that it is only comparatively recently that Canadian Manufactured goods have been shipped in volume and variety to overseas markets. It is only reasonable to expect that their numbers will increase and in this way, there will be offered to Canadian Manufacturers a method of securing export business that is sound, economical and safe.

METHOD NO. 5

Development of Export Trade Direct by Mail.

(This method though useful for highly specialized products marketed to well-rated and substantial customers is fraught with many dangers unless subjected to the closest analysis. It is true it grows gradually to the point of becoming exactly like Method No. 3, but the initial stages of attempting to do business direct by mail, without previous intense and discriminating selection of risks, are full of pitfalls and form a pretext for the propagation of many useless schemes.)

Many Canadian industries, organized primarily to supply their domestic market, do not have the large organization nor the facilities necessary to maintain branches or even direct agents handling only their products in foreign markets.

In these days of specialization, the products of many plants must sometimes be sold in the export markets by commission agents handling kindred lines in order to spread the selling expense over sufficient volume to make export sales profitable. In fact, modern practice has resulted in many plants making only one particular line of goods often of interest only to some one trade or profession. Often this means a field so restricted it does not pay the producer to seek export business through ordinary channels. However, such specialized lines usually have the advantage of being of special interest and usefulness to certain definitely known trades or professions. Lists of prospects for such lines can be obtained and trade solicited in foreign, almost as easily as in the domestic market. It is possible in this way to eliminate expensive selling costs and create a demand for such goods as will permit some responsible agent to stock or supply them profitably.

Of course, wherever this is practical, a selling agent right on the ground is always much better and more satisfactory. A good agent can create connections not obtainable by mail and can always learn why prospects are not interested or correct any misunderstanding which no amount of correspondence might bring out. It is no different in foreign markets than at home. Every purchaser takes the easiest way and will usually pay more to be relieved of all details of which he knows little or nothing.

The local agent has special advantages over direct-by-mail solicitation in countries using other than the English language. A good agent will speak fluently the one or more languages used and can usually translate special instructions into English for the manufacturer, thus overcoming many chances of misinterpretation.

Even if carefully written and checked over, transcriptions from English to other languages are sometimes misleading. Often the correct version does not convey the idea or thought as well as if the letter were written in the dialect peculiar to the country in which the prospect resides.

Particularly in financial matters, the agent can secure reports, approach only good accounts and help with collections when necessary.

But in spite of all these drawbacks it is possible to do a good and profitable export business direct by mail with lines which could in no other way be exported to advantage. Goods of exceptional interest and usefulness to some definitely known trade or profession—possibly not ordinarily obtainable except on special order or which must be delivered in fresh condition. Especially such goods as can be sent by Parcel Post.

The first step is to secure an agent to handle deliveries and lists of interested users. This can usually be done with the aid of the Canadian Trade Commissioner in the market to be tried.

The Commissioner should be given full particulars of the product—samples where possible—and suggestions as to the class of trade likely to be interested. He will suggest an agent and the best source for obtaining lists of prospects. Usually he can secure good lists for the exporter. As an official Canadian representative, the Trade Commissioner often has access to records and information not ordinarily obtainable. In fact, he can usually give better advice and suggestions about the market he represents than could be obtained by months of direct investigation. It is his duty to assist in the sale of any Canadian product in his market. No better corps of expert salesmen could be had at any price than is available to every Canadian exporter.

Having arranged for handling deliveries and secured a list of prospects, a carefully prepared campaign for that particular market should be worked out. Letters should always be in the language of that market. When other than English, such letters should be very carefully translated. If time permits, it is always best to submit the suggested series of letters to the Trade Commissioner for O.K. Translations are often much clearer and get better results if in the particular style or dialect in use in the prospect's country.

Full and complete description—good illustrations, showing the goods and their uses—are essential to best results. Even if it does not pay to translate catalogues or circulars, sufficient explanation should be given in the letters to make their advantages and uses clear to the prospect.

Arrangements with the agent should be made to either stock or obtain goods promptly a demand has been created so as not to lose the benefit of direct solicitation. With the help of the Trade Commissioner, a good agent should be arranged for who will supply the demand. With reasonable prospects the agent can be induced to purchase some stock or if sent on consignment to guarantee payment as the goods are sold. Once the agent is convinced there is a profitable demand he will undertake selling on his own account.

There is no doubt that many Canadian products could be exported in this way if reasonable time and care were given all the necessary details. Export markets are particularly desirable to most Canadian manufacturers to permit increased volume production—not always possible in a comparatively restricted home market. Even if such exports are sold close to actual costs, they are a great advantage in absorbing overhead costs and creating steady employment of sometimes highly trained staffs.

One thing should be kept in mind always—for the good of all Canadian exporters. Once foreign trade has been solicited, be prepared to make prompt deliveries of thoroughly dependable goods offering good value. A manufacturer who solicits foreign business only while his trade is slack in Canada and fails to give good service on foreign business during rush times in domestic trade is creating a very bad opinion in foreign markets, not only of his own concern but on all his fellow exporters as well.

Let every Canadian exporter maintain the good reputation created by our Trade Commissioners and by our most successful exporters by good service, reliable goods and fair dealing.

Explanation of List

THE list beginning on the opposite page comprises the names and addresses, alphabetically arranged, of all firms appearing in the classified section of the Canadian Trade Index. In this list we have tried to give the users of the book some information that will be useful in getting into quick touch with the makers of any desired article.

No street addresses are given in Part III (the classified article section). These are recorded where necessary to complete the address in Part II (the alphabetical list).

We have not attempted to give, in this list, any full account of the products. These will all be found under separate headings in the classified section on pages 345 and following. Where the firm or company name does not indicate clearly the line of goods manufactured, some of the main articles produced, or the nature of the firm's business, are mentioned.

The address given is that of the main place of business in Canada, usually the head office, although it may be both factory and office address. The addresses given later, under "Factories," "Mills," or "Plants" are generally those of branch factories. Branch offices also are given.

For. Rep. or simply Rep. means foreign or other representative for export sales purposes.

The Cable addresses and codes will be found useful in initiating and transacting export business.

Names of new firms received too late for listing in the main body of the blue section will be found under "Additions" at the end of this section.

Guide to Classified Index

THE method of indexing the material on the succeeding pages is that by which the most important word in headings is generally placed first. The arrangement then proceeds in the proper alphabetical order. In the majority of cases it will be found that the noun or main name comes first, i.e.—Furniture, bedroom; Hardware, builders; Leather, boot and shoe upper, etc. This allows the grouping of all similar articles close together. In other cases, where the inversion seems unnatural, the headings have been listed as they run—air appliances; fire escapes, etc. If any difficulty is experienced in locating desired headings or articles, users of the book should try both forms of listing. This will enable the heading to be found if it appears in the book at all.

In all cases we have endeavored to use the names most commonly known. It is possible that we have listed some products and materials under names that differ from those that our subscribers use. Synonyms will therefore be useful to bear in mind.

Cross references have been supplied where two or more names are commonly used to describe the same article.

Street addresses of the firms listed in the classified section are provided where necessary in the alphabetical list of names (on blue sheets) immediately preceding the Classified Section (Part III, pages 343 to 736).

Attention is also called to the French Index of articles, which is placed immediately after the Produce Section (Part IV, pages 737 to 744). In a limited edition a Spanish Index also appears following the French Index.

Firms before whose name an asterisk appears are engaged or seriously interested in Export Trade.

We shall be glad to have the opportunity of giving additional information to any manufacturer or user of the Canadian Trade Index. No charge is made for this service.
